Hitler Making His Supreme Bid To Crush Russian Forces

Ferocious Battle Raging Along Don Bend North- west of City

By RICHARD MCMURRAY
German armies beat ever closer to Stalingrad and slowly deeper into the Caucasus last (Sun) night. Hitler's supreme bid to crush Russia in the few remaining weeks of the summer.

Fighting on twin fronts probably within forty or fifty miles of the vital industrial city on the Volga, the Germans drove a deep new wedge into Soviet positions in the Kotelnikovsk sector and increased their enormous pressure in the Don end near Kletskaya, where a few troops already are across the placid river.

But the Russians were by no means beaten. Around Kletskaya, they had massed several armies and were reported mounting vigorous counter-attacks which were driving the Germans back in places in a desperate attempt to relieve pressure from Kotelnikovsk and the Caucasus.

The Soviet midnight communiqué issued early today told of savage fighting for Stalingrad, with a given take engagement in the Kletskaya area where it said the Russians had improved their positions at some points while the Germans drew more men across the Don river.

Fierce Battle along Don River

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
MOSCOW, Monday, Aug. 24 (AP)—A fierce five-and-a-half day battle in progress along the Don bend northwest of Stalingrad, the Soviet midnight communiqué indicated today, setting the Russians had driven the Germans from some positions at which the enemy had effected a few crossings of the river.

The communiqué also acknowledged the Germans had made some progress in the Don bend.

RAF Bombers Attack Emden in Broad Daylight

Score Hits in Surprise As- sault on German Port

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Two of the RAF's Wellington bombers prang a surprise attack on the German port and shipbuilding center of Emden by daylight today, scoring hits among buildings in the dock area.

The air ministry, announcing the raid, said the two bombers took Emden's defenders by surprise, rearing through the clouds at 4,000 feet, dumping their explosives and disappearing in the clouds again.

Returning home one Wellington exchanged fire with a Messerschmitt 109 fighter. The Wellington's rear gunner got in a long burst in the last of the nine attacks by the fighter and saw fragments break off the enemy plane. Then the clouds closed in and nothing further was seen of the Messerschmitt.

Bombs were dropped on a place in the south coast of England this afternoon and last night, a communiqué said, bombs fell at widely separated points in Eastern England and the East Midlands. Two Nazi planes were destroyed.

President of Uruguay Indicates His Nation Will Soon Declare War

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY, Aug. 23 (AP)—President Baldomir informed President Vargas of Brazil today that Uruguay is in complete solidarity with the Brazilian cause and will not into effect the Havana agreement which he said "makes the commitment a single nation against aggressions of a non-American state."

This was interpreted as further indication that Uruguay might follow Brazil into war, for the Havana declaration to which Baldomir referred provided:

"That an attempt by a non-American state against the integrity and inviolability of territory and against the sovereignty and political independence of one American state will be considered an act of aggression against the states signing this declaration."

Three Trainmen Feared Drowned In West Va. Wreck

Engine and Ten Cars Plunge Through Bridge into Creek

CLAY, W. Va., Aug. 23 (AP)—Three members of a Baltimore and Ohio railroad freight train crew were reported missing late tonight after the engine and ten cars plunged through bridge No. 41-1 between Hardman and Shelton.

The B&O dispatcher at Gassaway identified the missing men as Engineer W. E. Palsley, Fireman R. R. Smith and Front Brakeman C. E. Thompson, all of Gassaway.

The dispatcher said it was "presumed" that the bridge supports had been undermined by high water in Big Sycamore creek.

Two other members of the train crew, who were not immediately identified, were reported uninjured.

Railroad officials said they could not say definitely whether the three missing men were drowned or killed. There was a slight possibility, they added, that the men may have swam to safety.

The Hardman and Hardman mortuary at Clay had reported that at least three men "are in the water," and said it had sent one of its ambulances to the accident scene about nine miles north of Clay.

The train, No. 87, was en route to Charleston from Gassaway. The exact number of cars behind the engine was not known, the dispatcher explaining that it had picked up a number and placed others on sidings in its trip southward.

Portugal Stays Loyal to Brazil

LISBON, Monday, Aug. 24 (AP)—Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar sent a message to the Brazilian government today declaring that the "moral solidarity" of Portugal and Brazil had not been altered by Brazil's declaration of war against Germany and Italy.

In an announcement issued after an extraordinary session of the cabinet, the premier said that the position of neutrality assumed by Portugal in the war had never meant "any breach of the historical bonds which link Portugal and other countries."

This was especially true, he said, with regard to Brazil "with whom ties of blood make relations between the two countries unchangeable."

The statement will be delivered to the Brazilian government by the Portuguese ambassador at Rio de Janeiro.

4 Jap Bombers, 9 Zero Fighters, Bagged by Allies

Japanese Launch Attack on Darwin with 47 Planes

Defenders Do Not Lose a Single Plane; Dam- age Slight

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Monday, Aug. 24 (AP)—Forty-seven Japanese planes, including twenty-seven heavy bombers, staged a big raid on the airfield at Darwin Sunday, but were held to only slight damage by the brilliant work of Allied fighters, who shot down four of the attacking bombers and nine zero fighter escort planes, Allied headquarters announced today.

The defenders did not lose a single craft.

The Allies, in addition to frustrating the Japanese attack, also took the initiative by bombing enemy positions in the northern end of the Solomon Island group.

They bombed buildings in the wharf area along Buka Passage, the narrow strait which separates the islands of Buka and Bougainville. The results were not observed.

In the raid on Darwin, the Japanese used twenty-seven bombers and twenty fighters.

The communiqué said:

"Northwestern sector:
"Darwin: Twenty-seven heavy bombers escorted by twenty zero type fighters attacked the airfield causing only slight damage. In a brilliant tactical interception by Allied fighters four enemy bombers and nine Zero fighters were shot down without combat loss to ourselves."

"Northeastern sector:
"Buka Passage, Solomons: an Allied unit on offensive reconnaissance bombed enemy buildings and the wharf area with unobserved results."

Brazil Paves Way For Defense of South America

Entrance into War Hailed as Great Aid to United States

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Brazil's declaration of war on Germany and Italy cleared the way today for prompt and vigorous measures to secure the defense of the most vulnerable land area on the Atlantic side of the Western Hemisphere—the South American hump only 1,600 miles from Africa.

Ever since the war started, United States military men have pointed to this strategic sector as the one which the Axis forces would attack if ever they were able to consolidate their European and African positions sufficiently to permit direct action against the Americas.

Brazil Plans Defense
Establishment of adequate protection, therefore, was clearly Brazil's first strategic task, and indications that a speedy concentration of military strength in that area was contemplated.

A statement to that effect came from Brig. Gen. Amaro Soares Bittencourt, Brazilian military attaché here and the senior delegate to the inter-American defense board. The board will hold its first formal meeting Tuesday with the strategic problems growing out of Brazil's belligerence to the fore.

General Bittencourt said that in defending herself Brazil "is defending the continent" and that to accomplish this "we must concentrate and reunite all our military elements for the defense of the northeast, the strategic point on the bulge of Brazil for invasion by the Axis."

Expect Help from U. S.
There was no doubt in official quarters that the United States stood ready to aid its ally to any extent required. Already, in fact,

3 Killed in Wreck Of Passenger Train

BRIGHTON, Mich., Aug. 23 (AP)—Three persons were killed in a collision between a Pere Marquette passenger train and an automobile at the Silver Lake road crossing near Brighton tonight.

State police said Leon Slade, the engineer, and Norman Cooley, the fireman, both of Grand Rapids, and J. Bell, driver of the automobile, were killed.

The locomotive and four or five cars were derailed in the collision, state police said.

First reports said there were no injuries among the passengers.

The train, westbound, was en route to Lansing.

South American Nations Likely To Join Brazil

Signs of Complete Solidar- ity against Axis Are Evident

Uruguay May Issue De- claration of War in Few Days

By JOSEPH F. McEVROY
BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA, Aug. 23 (AP)—Signs of complete solidarity with Brazil came quickly today from the South American neighbors notwithstanding that the Brazilian declaration of war against Germany and Italy drew them immeasurably closer to the world conflict.

The Brazilian action, no surprise to South America, placed in sharp focus the international position of Argentina and Chile, only two Latin American nations still on diplomatic speaking terms with the Axis.

A strong official hint that Uruguay would follow Brazil shortly came when President Baldomir, of Uruguay, informed President Vargas of Brazil that Uruguay was ready to carry out the Havana agreement which, he said, "makes the continent a single nation against aggressions of a non-American state." Just when Uruguay would act was not indicated.

Uruguay Takes Action
In concrete support of Brazil, Uruguay ordered frontier guards reinforced after some German and Italian residents of Brazil crossed the border to escape the wrath of the war-frenzied Brazilian population. Authorities ordered a roundup of Axis nationals in the Santa Anna Do Livramento and Acegua areas in order to force those illegally residing there to return to Brazil.

Official reports from northern Uruguay said two submarines had been sighted 150 miles north of Chouy.

There were reports that some submarines, presumably German, also were prowling off the mouth of the Plate river, the artery which links Buenos Aires to the Atlantic.

It seemed certain, informed sources said, that Argentina's neutrality would undergo a test should Germany declare the coast of Brazil a blockade zone.

Blockade Recognized
Argentina gave recognition to the U-boat blockade zone fixed for the Eastern United States and Canada by ordering her ships to enter only ports in the Gulf of Mexico.

Moreover, Argentine ships are prohibited from going to England, France, Germany, Belgium, Norway, Holland and Denmark. If Brazil is designated a blockade zone by Germany, Argentine ships would have to go to the western United States by the strait of Magellan and the

A. P. Correspondent May Be Safe in New Guinea

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 23 (AP)—A war correspondent of the Sydney Morning Herald reported today that Sergeant George T. Richmond of Hopewell, Va., and Sergeant Paul Ramsey of Vincennes, Ind., had arrived at Port Moresby, New Guinea, after being missing with other members of a bomber crew and Vern Haugland, Associated Press war correspondent, since Aug. 7.

Richmond was the gunner-engineer of the bomber and Ramsey was the bombardier. They expressed the belief Haugland and the others were safe, saying they saw them landing in the jungle after bailing out of the bomber which ran out of a fuel tank in a storm.

(A dispatch from Melbourne yesterday said three crew members had arrived at Port Moresby. These apparently included Richmond and Ramsey, although no names were given.)

Fortress Pilot Saves Damaged Plane

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Flying Fortress pilot who despite a shell-shattered right arm remained conscious long enough to direct his bombardier to a safe landing in England after a big aerial battle over the North Sea Friday, was Lieutenant Richard S. Starks, of Midway, Ky., United States army headquarters for the European theater announced today.

The co-pilot who was killed when a 20 mm. shell from one of the attacking planes burst inside the Fortress, was Second Lieutenant Donald Walter, of Painesville, Ohio. Two of the plane's four motors were knocked out in the fight.

Quisling Policeman Killed at Oslo

LONDON, Aug. 23 (AP)—Norwegian sources in London reported today a Quisling policeman was killed and two others injured seriously by a bomb explosion in an Oslo police station Friday.

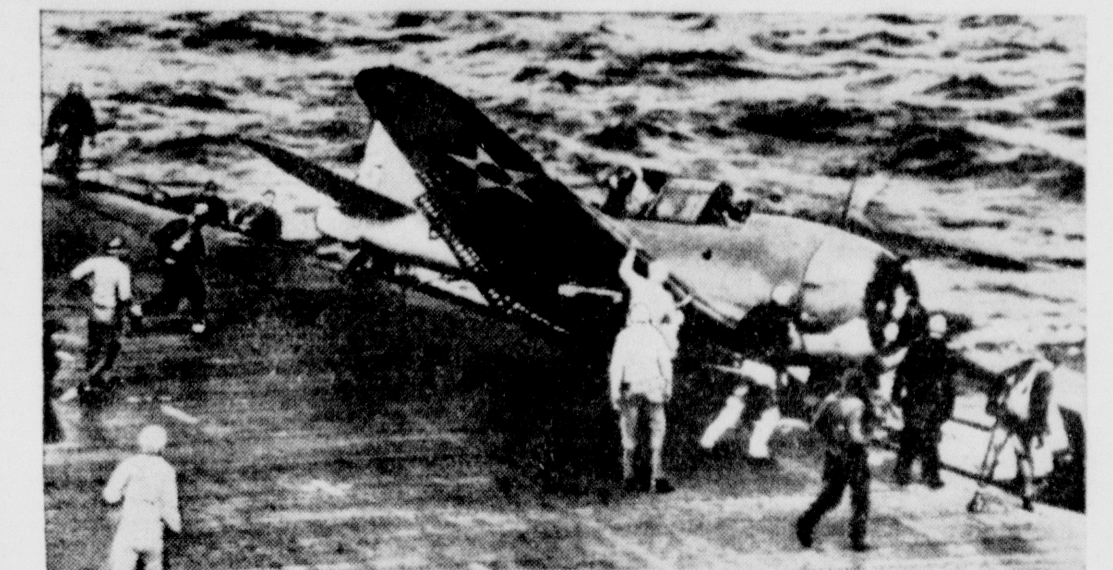

Several persons, described by Quisling authorities as "Communists" were arrested in connection with the case, but two of them escaped.

The same sources said disturbances have broken out among several thousand Norwegian workers compelled to build fortifications at the Tromsø naval base.

The Germans, who have intensified their guard over the area, have threatened the workers with reprisals if the outbreaks don't cease, the sources said.

Auxiliary Coast Guardsmen Proud Of Their Work

Say They Enjoy Little Job of Aiding Regular Guardsmen

By JAMES E. HAGUE
BALTIMORE, Aug. 23 (Wide World)—It's like giving blood to the Red Cross. It's not much in itself but after all a war is just a lot of little jobs put together in a big way.

As Herb Bagg spoke, his cabin cruiser moved up to the neck of the harbor, where Herb and his crew of three—all coast guard auxiliary—were to take over the job of checking the busy harbor's traffic.

"The way I feel about it," he went on as the wake danced in the fading sunlight, "it's a small job. It's not like being in the battle of Midway—not by a long shot—but we do free the regular coast guards for other jobs, probably lots more important."

Smoke from the mills on the point ahead lay in plumes across the sky. Murrell "Steve" Stevenson got into the conversation.

"We're just going to put in twenty-four hours," he said, "of keeping tabs on the stuff that goes in and out of the harbor. Watch the ships, read a couple of code signals and report to the Regular coast guard boat every couple of hours."

Job Must Be Done
"It may not sound like much but it's got to be done if this stuff—I suppose in the newspapers you'd call it sinews of war—is to be kept moving, not only in Baltimore but in every harbor in the country."

"It seems silly to tie up a regular

7 Hay Wagons Create Stir on Capital Street

"Hey, Lookit, Horses", Yelps Boy on Constitu- tion Avenue

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—The kid on Constitution avenue almost fell off his bicycle this afternoon.

"Hey, lookit!" he yelled. "Horses!"

As two taxis shied out of the way, around the corner and down the avenue came seven hay wagons loaded with 200 service men in uniform and government girls in clover.

In front was a police escort. Bringing up the rear was a truck piled high with scrap—metal, rubber, odds and ends that will go into the nation's war effort. It was the start of Washington's salvage drive. Some sort of scrap was the price of the hayride and subsequent picnic. The girls paid with the scrap and the USO provided the service men.

Over the sound of the hooves clop-clopping on the pavement came the strains of "While Our Caissons Go Rolling Along." A marine led out with "From the Halls of Montezuma to the Shores of Tripoli." Nothing could stop the army air corps, and the medley was terrific.

Reluctant to take sides, the girls struck up a true tune, and the service men grinningly joined in "When It's Springtime in the Rockies."

As the hayride rolled past Lincoln memorial, a sunburned soldier called to a smiling old man on the sidewalk, "Hey, grampa, get on—you've been on these rides in your time."

"Not in the daylight, son," the older yipped back. "They're more fun after dark."

TEN KNOWN DEAD IN PLANE CRASH NEAR DAHLGREN, VA.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—A Navy patrol plane, engaging in what the Navy described as a routine flight, crashed in a field near Dahlgren, Va., tonight, killing at least ten and possibly eleven men.

Sergeant Bill Moore, a toll bridge guard, who witnessed the crash, said the plane started falling near his post on a Potomac river bridge and crashed into a field a mile and a half away.

The Navy department was unable to say immediately where the plane began its flight, or its destination. It was understood, however, that it was not from the navy's proving grounds at Dahlgren.

Names Not Announced
Names of the men on the ship were not immediately available, nor was there any immediate indication of the cause.

Investigating officers were sent to the scene which was surrounded by a cordon of marine guards.

CAIRO, Aug. 23 (AP)—Medium bombers of the United States air force, operating in brilliant moonlight, attacked Axis workshops in the western desert last night, while RAF medium and heavy bombers raided enemy bases and munitions dumps.

The RAF scored hits on various key-points including the communications center and the region in and around Matruh.

RAF fighter-bombers, stepping up their activity, attacked groups of enemy vehicles in the southern and central sectors of the desert front, a communiqué said.

British middle east headquarters reported only patrol activity on land.

Brazil Rounding Up Spy Suspects As Protection against the Nazis

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Aug. 23 (AP)—Searchlights swept the skies over Rio de Janeiro's harbor as protection against surprise attack tonight and police car sirens shrieked as authorities carried out an intensive roundup of spy suspects on Brazil's first day of war.

Great activity marked the preparation of the government for what the people believed would be a long and hard fight with Germany and Italy.

In Rio de Janeiro and other cities civil, military and special police carried out a roundup of persons known to have had dubious association with Axis agents in South America.

Authorities started a search for secret radio transmitters, and announced they had found one in the building of the German embassy, and others elsewhere.

Increase Air Patrol
The Brazilian fleet and air force intensified their patrol of the coast in the region of the vital "Natal bulge," eastern promontory which is only 1,500 miles from Dakar, Africa, and which is a jumping-off place on a route of war supplies from the Western to the Eastern hemisphere.

Military authorities turned closest attention to French Guiana to the north, a region assuming increasing military importance as the French government at Vichy moves toward full collaboration with Germany, French Guiana, it was pointed out, lies directly across the coastal line of communication between Brazil and the United States.

Sharp Impetus Given to Plans For Second Front

Crash Fighting Units and War Materials Ready for Attack

Large Part of Convoy Com- posed of Men for Air Force

By WES GALLAGHER
WITH THE UNITED STATES ARMY SOMEWHERE IN BRITAIN, Aug. 23 (AP)—The largest American convoy ever to cross the Atlantic in this war has arrived at many British ports with vast quantities of war materials and crack fighting units obviously eager to "get it over with."

The movement of such a mass of men and materials was disclosed tonight and gave sharp emphasis to the prospects of a second front in 1942.

A large proportion of the convoy was composed of men and material for the American air force, which already is active with Fortress bombers blasting the Nazi transportation system with precision bombing.

Many war experts are looking for an "aerial push" by the American air force and the RAF designed to soften Germany on the ground and in the air for an eventual invasion.

Despite the great size of the convoy, which was unloaded at many ports, both soldiers and munitions melted rapidly into the interior of England, where the invasion armies are training.

Chinese Retake Two Positions On Vital Sector

Occupy Kiangshan and Huanghantu on Railroad Line

CHUNGKING, Aug. 23 (AP)—Pressing hard on the heels of retreating Japanese, the Chinese recaptured Kiangshan and Huanghantu today, thus broadening their hold on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway to more than 110 miles, the Chinese central news agency reported.

Driving eastward, the Chinese crossed the border in Chekiang province in three columns and engaged the enemy southwest of Kiangshan. After a fierce fight the Japanese withdrew, burning the city as they went.

The Chinese thus were within twenty miles of Chubien, a potential United States air base which was one of the chief objectives of the Japanese when they began their mid-summer campaign in the coastal provinces of Central China.

At the same time a westward advancing Chinese force, after recapturing Yingtun yesterday, pushed northward and took Huanghantu this morning.

Kuanghantu is six miles from Yukiang which also was recaptured.

O'Daniels Holds 11,610 Lead in Texas Primary

Senator Apparent Victor against Roosevelt Candidate

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 23 (AP)—Senator Wilbert Lee O'Daniel, showed to the front in a close race by rural votes, continued today to hold a lead which apparently gave him the Texas Democratic nomination for a full six-year term in the United States Senate.

Such nomination in Texas is tantamount to election. The Texas Election Bureau, releasing a 4 p. m. tabulation which showed O'Daniel leading James V. Alfred by 11,610 votes, continued its statement that the incumbent "appeared to have won re-nomination" in the run-off election and said there was virtually no possibility of an upset.

Hardly more than 34,000 votes remained to be counted, the bureau said.

Defeats Roosevelt Man

O'Daniel, who campaigned as a "common citizens' senator," appealing for an overwhelming majority as "an old clockmaker that you've picked up" and sent to Washington, had 436,450 votes against 424,840 for Alfred, a former Roosevelt-appointed federal judge who resigned to make the race.

Apparently settled were several state races and the Bureau dropped tabulation in these after a noon bulletin. On the basis of those returns John Lee Smith had defeated Harold Beck for the lieutenant-governorship; Beauford Jester was elected to the unexpired term of railroad commissioner over Pierce Brooks, and Jesse James was re-elected state treasurer over W. Gregory Hatcher.

Isolation Charge Failed

Throughout the senatorial fight Alfred accused the senator of isolationism and a lack of knowledge of national and international affairs. O'Daniel denied emphatically the isolationist charges.

For O'Daniel nomination would mean his fourth consecutive victory in Texas politics. He was twice named governor; then was elected senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Morris Sheppard.

Alfred, also a former governor, declared during the campaign that his defeat would constitute a repudiation of President Roosevelt.

Ski Instructor Weds Film Star

Martin Arrouge Marries Norma Shearer in Church Ceremony

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Aug. 23 (AP)—A romance begun four years ago when they met at a Sun Valley, Idaho, vacation resort where he was a professional ski instructor, culminated in a quiet church wedding today for Norma Shearer, former screen actress, and Martin Arrouge.

The ceremony, which united the 36-year-old widow of Irving Thalberg, movie producer who died six years ago, in wedlock with the sportsman eight years her junior, was officiated by Father John J. O'Donnell at the Church of the Good Shepherd.

Miss Shearer's two children by her first marriage, Irving Thalberg, Jr., 11, and Katherine Thalberg, 8, and a few close film colony friends of the couple attended the wedding.

Mrs. Sylvia Fairbanks, widow of screen actor Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., flew here from New York to be matron of honor. Otto Lang, ski instructor and old friend of the groom, was best man.

In a pre-nuptial agreement by the couple, Arrouge waived all rights to Miss Shearer's community property from her late husband's estate, saying he wanted it known he was marrying her for love and not her money.

Miss Shearer estimated the estate at $1,500,000 and said it has been kept in trust for the support of her and her two children.

The couple plan to honeymoon at the nearby Santa Monica home of the bride. Arrouge said he expects to enter the army shortly.

Frederick Youth Killed in Crash

FREDERICK, Md., Aug. 23 (AP)—Preston Clay Sheets, 19, of Frederick, was fatally injured tonight when his automobile and a milk truck sideswiped two miles west of here on route 40.

State Police Corporal M. M. Punks said Sheets' head was crushed when the truck body ripped the top from the automobile. Sheets died in Frederick City Hospital an hour and a half later.

Miss Doris Tucker, Jefferson, Md., companion of Sheets, was treated at the hospital for scalp and facial lacerations.

William Graser, 33, Frederick, suffered a fractured left arm. His brother, Harry F. Graser, driver of the truck, suffered shock. Another passenger in the truck, Harvey Wilt, Frederick, was unhurt.

Corp. Punks said investigation of the crash was continuing.

progress northeast of Kotelnikovski, the southern arm of the Nazi twin thrust at Stalingrad.

"In the area of Kletska our troops fought active operations and improved their positions," the communiqué said of the Don Bend fighting. "Guardsmen of 'X' unit drove the Germans out of a number of populated places."

The Russians said, however, that in this area fierce battles continued for Don river crossings and added:

"On one sector the enemy was able to get across troops and tanks and our troops are fighting fierce battles with these enemy groups."

An earlier report to the Soviet army newspaper, Red Star, said the Russians had succeeded in smashing one German attempt to make a new crossing and the Germans had lost 1,000 men.

"The enemy is increasing his pressure in the center of the Don Bend," the paper said, "but Soviet troops are firmly holding positions captured a few days ago."

Italians in Action

The communiqué also spoke of heavy fighting here against an Italian division, declaring that at least half of this division had been killed.

Speaking of the southern prong of the battle for Stalingrad, the communiqué said:

"In the area northeast of Kotelnikovski our troops fought intensive battles with large tank and infantry forces. On various sectors the Germans, at the cost of tremendous losses, managed to advance."

Heavy fighting also continued south of Krasnodar, in the Caucasus, where the Germans are trying to drive through to the Black Sea, and southeast of Pyatigorsk, spearhead of the German thrust toward the Grozny oil field.

There was no indication, however, that the Germans had made any progress in either of these sectors.

In the Krasnodar sector, the communiqué said, one Russian detachment "repulsed a strong German attack and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy."

Tense Battle for Stalingrad
Of the Pyatigorsk region, it said simply that "our units fought defensive engagements with enemy tanks and motorized infantry."

Fresh Nazi forces brought out of reserve pools or switched from other sectors were piled steadily into the tense battle for Stalingrad on which Hitler's command desperately hopes to deliver a mortal blow to the Red army and Soviet economy.

Everywhere the Russians fought stubbornly on against every enemy thrust, exacting a mounting toll of casualties in men and machines. Their lines appeared to be intact everywhere despite the wedge in the Kotelnikovski sector.

In the other major battle of the Caucasus, the Red army continued to roll back southward from Krasnodar toward the Black Sea before the overwhelming pressure of enemy forces. The Russians held successive lines as long as possible on the road to the naval base of Novorossiisk and then withdrew to new positions.

Nazis Nearing Oil Fields

They also engaged in resolute fighting southeast of Pyatigorsk where the Germans were inching steadily closer to the Grozny oil fields, surpassed in value only by the Baku pool sheltered by the 18,000 foot Caucasus mountains. The Germans were less than 100 miles from the Grozny derricks.

(The Germans again failed to mention the Stalingrad battle but said Russian attempts to cross the Don at various points were frustrated. Strong Russian positions and road barriers in unspecified sections of the Caucasus were declared penetrated and Russian counter-attacks were said to have been repulsed. This drive apparently was south of Krasnodar.)

(The Germans said strong Russian infantry and tank attacks were repelled in the Kaluga and Rzhev sectors southwest and northwest of Moscow. Soviet thrusts southeast of Lake Ilmen and outside Leningrad were said to have collapsed. The Germans claimed their air force destroyed two freighters and a tug on the Volga. The destruction of 161 tanks, eighty-six of them on the front of a single army corps, was reported in the Moscow sectors, indicating very heavy Russian attacks.)

American Labor Party Seeks To Defeat Bennett

Enters New York State Race to Delight of Dewey Supporters

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—An outright test of the strength of the American Labor Party in New York state politics seemed assured today with the completion of a three-party lineup for the November gubernatorial election.

For the first time in its six-year existence the Labor Party, whose power to swing elections often has been debated by politicians, has named to endorse the Democratic nominee and instead has named its own candidate, a new deal Democrat.

Alfange Heads Ticket

The man chosen as A.L.P. standard bearer in the party's state convention yesterday was Dean Alfange, a bookish, 44-year-old lawyer of Greek parentage, who made an unsuccessful race for Congress in 1941 on the Democratic ticket in New York's seventeenth silk-stocking district.

Alfange will run against States Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., the Democratic nominee whom the A.L.P. spurned on the ground he failed to meet true liberal standards, and probably against former District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, who seems certain of the Republican nomination at the party's convention this week.

Four years ago the Labor Party's 419,000 votes in the Democratic column were credited largely with the re-election of Governor Herbert H. Lehman, who defeated Dewey by a plurality of only about 68,000.

This time the labor party members presumably will throw their weight to Alfange whose selection also was viewed as a bid for the support of any Democrats who may have opposed the nomination of Bennett on grounds that President Roosevelt's choice was Senator James M. Mead.

Many Republican leaders hope that the three-party struggle will result in the election of a Republican governor for the first time in twenty years, particularly if Dewey is able to poll votes as well as he did four years ago.

Bennett was backed by former Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley.

Pacific at a tremendous cost, or risk the blockade.

Although observers in Montevideo said there was a possibility that Uruguay would accompany Brazil into the war, informed sources declared Uruguay's first official move would be to declare Brazil non-belligerent, permitting Brazil to use Uruguayan ports as in peace time.

These sources said this decision might be followed by more drastic measures against the Axis but they would depend largely on Germany's answer to protests over the sinking of two Uruguayan merchantmen. Uruguay was particularly incensed because the submarine which sank the Maldonado took aboard her captain, brother of a cabinet minister.

Argentine Decision Today

Argentina will decide her official attitude Monday, it was reported, but it was a foregone conclusion that she, too, would declare Brazil a non-belligerent as she did the United States after Pearl Harbor.

The Chilean government maintained official silence, although it previously had expressed solidarity by protesting to Berlin against the sinkings of Brazilian ships which touched off the Brazilian declaration.

It was believed Chile would announce her position tomorrow.

There have been increasing signs in Chile that she might break diplomatic relations with the Axis, possibly in conjunction with the forthcoming visit of President Juan Antonio Rios to the United States.

Rios also has accepted invitations to visit Venezuela, Uruguay, Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Panama, Mexico, Cuba, Argentina and Brazil.

Nazis Warn Brazil

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts), Aug. 23 (AP)—Brazil, now that it is in the war, can look forward to only "blood, sweat and tears," the diplomatic correspondent of DNB, official German news service, wrote tonight.

Brazil Paves Way

this country has given much help to Brazil under lend-lease arrangements, furnishing airplanes, arms and equipment for Brazil's growing army and training aviators for the air force. Moreover, the fact that American airmen were credited with successful attacks on German submarines operating off the coast of Brazil indicates that some United States forces already are based in that country.

Whatever offensive role Brazil may play in the war, it is believed here, depends primarily on two factors — the size of the force she can raise beyond that needed for defensive purposes and the urgency of requirements for her troops in other theaters of the World war.

Raising Large Army

The present size of Brazil's army has not been disclosed but is generally estimated at more than 160,000 men with 300,000 active reservists. Last April President Getulio Vargas signed a decree which would have the effect of increasing this force to 1,200,000 men.

The navy, for the size of the job it has to do, is relatively small, consisting of two recently modernized battleships, thirty-three and thirty-four years old, supported by a force of two cruisers, about a dozen destroyers, four submarines, half a dozen torpedo boats and a score or more gunboats, minesweepers and other auxiliaries. A destroyer building program is in progress.

How much of the population of 46,000,000 would be available for military service is problematical since Brazil's biggest contribution to the cause of the United Nations is almost certain to be in supplying raw materials — a function that already is occupying much of her manpower.

Willkie Motion Splits G. O. P.

Resolution Praising Him Brings Criticism at Saratoga

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP)—A factional storm broke out behind the scenes tonight on the eve of the New York Republican convention's expected nomination of Thomas E. Dewey for governor over the introduction of a resolution lauding Wendell L. Willkie.

The resolution, a party member who declined to be quoted, said praised the 1940 presidential nominee's efforts in support of the war and asserted "he holds the admiration and affection of the American people."

The proposal was put before a closed meeting of county chairmen, the party member asserted, by Roland B. Marvin, former Syracuse mayor and Onondaga county Republican leader who was a supporter of Willkie in the latter's successful fight against Dewey for the presidential nomination.

After protracted debate, action on the resolution was left to the discretion of the party's state executive committee behind closed doors.

Two-Man Production Staff Awarded WPB Flag Poster by Donald Nelson

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP)—The two-man production staff of a plant at Bay City, Mich., — a 60-year-old employer and his 79-year-old employee — received a large American flag poster, official recognition as a labor-management production drive committee, and a letter from Donald M. Nelson today commending their efforts.

Jack Sparling wrote President Roosevelt and he and Percy Fogelson, his entire "staff," had been working an average of fifteen hours a day, seven days a week, and had made 18,000 steel flanges for war machinery.

He asked for Pennant Sparling said "the old gent and myself" would like a pennant.

Mr. Roosevelt sent the letter to Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, who not only sent a large American flag poster surmounting the inscription "give it your best," but ordered Sparling's name to lead all the rest of the plants formally entered in the war production drive "in recognition of the example the entire working

CIO Employees Threaten Strike In Buffalo Plant

Work on War Contracts May Be Stopped; Trouble in Detroit

(By The Associated Press)
Work on war contracts held by the Houde Engineering Corporation at Buffalo, N. Y., faced stoppage tonight as CIO employees authorized their leaders to call a strike if "they deem it necessary" to get a collective bargaining agency election.

Thomas Nelson, secretary of the CIO United Automobile Workers local at the plant, said the proposed strike was unauthorized by international officers, but that the local had decided to force the issue after having failed to get action on a petition for an election.

Await Reports From Delegates

Union members in seven big ALCOA plants awaited reports tomorrow from returning delegates who attended a conference last week of CIO Aluminum Workers at Pittsburgh at which a general wage increase was discussed. The delegates indicated that they were ready to recommend rejection of a decision of the War Labor Board denying higher pay.

President Nick A. Zonerich said he was empowered to call a strike if the WLB's action was disapproved by locals.

An appeal of the WLB that a midwestern truckers strike be ended apparently had some effect. Fay Watson of Watson Brothers Trucking Co., at Omaha, Neb., said that the strike had ended so far as the lines that operated through Omaha were concerned.

Affected by this strike were approximately 10,000 drivers in eight states west of the Mississippi river. Involved was a question of retroactive pay increases.

Trouble in Detroit

At Detroit, production of tanks in the main plant of the Chrysler Corporation tank arsenal went ahead, although E. J. Hunt, operating manager, said that walkout of construction workers employed in building a new plant would hold up future production. AFL workers protested the employment of CIO sheet metal men.

The WLB was scheduled to take up this week a dispute involving the General Motors Corporation's Harrison radiator division in Lockport, N. Y. CIO workers had called a strike for Monday, but it was later postponed upon notification that the case would be certified to the WLB. The union seeks a pay increase.

netly cleared the way for prompt Senate action Monday on a House-approved measure to give service men in Continental United States the right to vote by mail in national elections for senators, representatives and presidential electors. He indicated a compromise had been reached on the state's rights questions which led him to block action on the measure last week by pointing to the absence of a quorum.

While Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky issued a week-end call for absent members to return for Monday's vote, proponents of the measure suggested a clause to safeguard the states' control over the qualifications of voters. George said this would meet his objections.

Although George declined specific speculation on likely changes in the tax bill, which would add $6,271,000,000 to annual federal revenues as passed by the House, he made it clear that still higher income rates than those already approved were under careful consideration. However, he said he believed any such increases should be equalized by provisions to prevent the tax burden from bringing distress to persons already saddled with heavy debt commitments.

Suggestions of witnesses during the open hearings ranged from requests for sharp tax increases in the lower brackets to pleas for placing more of the load on incomes above $10,000. Direct withholding levies on wages, interest and dividends, and sales taxes from 5 to 10 per cent have also been proposed.

Headache for Hitler
The convoy's arrival, coming almost simultaneously with the visit of Prime Minister Churchill to Moscow and the super-commando raid on Dieppe, was calculated to give Hitler something to worry about.

Among the vessels which have been hauling troops there appeared at one British port for the first time a Liberty ship — a heartening sight to Britons, acutely aware of civilian and military privations which are attributed by their leaders to shipping losses.

Tank crews filled their machines with gasoline at the docks and drove away ready for action.

All were eager to start fighting with the motto "let's get it over with."

Army encampments from the eastern seaboard to the great southwest have been represented among recent arrivals.

"Crack" Units Only

Private Pearce Claude, 22, of Gallup, N. M., a Navajo Indian declared he and other red-skinned warriors were fine fighters but poor sailors.

Another arrival was Private Max P. Pablada, 34, of Los Angeles, a Filipino, whose mother, father and brother were in a village hundreds of miles north of Manila when the Japanese captured the Philippine capital.

He said he was anxious to "lick the Nazis and then get at the Japs."

Independent Army Command Opened By British in Both Iraq and Iran

By British in Both Iraq and Iran

LONDON, Monday, Aug. 24. (AP)—The war office announced today the formation of an independent army command in Iraq and Iran under General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson.

This step, which divided the Allied middle and Near East into three separate commands, was seen as a result of Prime Minister Churchill's recent visit to Egypt, at which time he held a long conference with General Wilson.

The first result of the prime minister's visit was the substitution of General Sir Harold Alexander for General Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck as commander of the North African front.

The new set-up gives the British an independent command facing in the direction of the serious German advances into the Russian Caucasus.

Second Command Needed

Iraq and Iran formerly were part of General Auchinleck's command, but difficulties of maintaining communications were said to be the reason for establishing an independent command.

Four hundred miles of desert separate Iraq and Iran from the present middle East command in Egypt.

Road communications are poor. Sea lines also are long since it is necessary to send ships around Saudi Arabia from Egypt. Communications are equally bad between India and the new command area.

The three British commands in the middle east and east now are:

1—Facing the Japanese on the eastern border of India.
2—Facing the Germans and Italians in Egypt.
3—Facing northward in Iraq and Iran toward the Caucasus where the Germans are advancing.

Tedder Heads RAF

Chief Air Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, with headquarters in Egypt, will retain command of the RAF in all three areas.

General Wilson, who is sixty years old and who is known as "Jumbo" because of his size, served as right-hand-man to General Sir Archibald P. Wavell in the campaign which drove the Italians across Libya in the winter of 1940-41. At that time Churchill spoke of him as "one of our finest tacticians."

He became commander-in-chief of British troops in Egypt in 1939 and was responsible for the defense of the western desert during the difficult months after the collapse of France. He commanded the British expeditionary force in Greece in 1941 and after that country was evacuated he was named commander in Palestine and Transjordan. He also commanded the successful British campaign in Syria.

Interpreting the War News
By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Japanese have been fighting more or less defensively for two and a half months now. Unless they swing over to a strong offensive soon, one may well wonder at their inactivity since the battle of Midway in June.

The trouble certainly is not that they lack military and naval power to strike. They have the men and equipment to attack Siberia today, if they want to do so. They have the ships and troops to make another thrust at India, Australia, Hawaii, Alaska or any of the islands guarding the United States-Australian supply line.

Russia Not Attacked

Two months ago — even two or three weeks ago — any well-informed military man would have laid a small wager that by this time the Japs would have pitched into the Red armies in Siberia. One of Tokyo's traditional military aims has been to remove the threat of the maritime provinces from the Japanese homeland. Vladivostok is within easy bombing distance of Japan.

Now military men are saying that perhaps this very danger of bombing has made Tokyo cautious. Significantly related to the inactivity in Siberia is the fact that in about paring the huge bases, transportation problems and working out plans for the handling of thousands of troops. These bases now are nearing completion and are able to absorb men and materials at a sharply stepped-up pace.

The air force is in a similar position and its striking power can be doubled and redoubled within an extremely short space of time compared to the months of preliminary preparations.

Sun-browned, war - whooping American soldiers — with some Navajo Indians among them — were included among the arrivals, which included every branch of the service for the new striking force being assembled under Lieut. Gen. Dwight B. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of American forces in the European theater.

Barrett Favors Abolishing All But Raid Sirene

Would Have Fire and Police Warnings End for Duration

BALTIMORE, Aug. 23 (AP) — Col. Henry S. Barrett, state director of air raid precautions, today recommended that all sirens — except those used in the civilian defense warning system — be banned for the duration in Maryland.

He said he would suggest to state fire coordinator James W. Just that fire departments be requested to use bells on their engines instead of sirens.

Would Prevent Confusion

In commenting on the recent instance in the Towson area when several hundred air raid wardens confused the sound of fire sirens with the air-raid alarm and reported for duty, Barrett said "the sound of fire sirens and the sound of the air-raid alarm must not be confused. If they are, the people will not respond to the air raid signal."

"Of course I can't prevent the use of sirens," Col. Barrett said, "but I had had no way to a single siren outside the civilian defense warning system would be permitted to sound in Maryland for the duration."

Seeks To Solve Problem

J. Kempt Bartlett, Jr., deputy director of civilian defense in Baltimore county, said a solution to the problem would be sought at a meeting of civilian defense officials Wednesday evening at Towson.

H. Street Baldwin, Baltimore county civilian defense director, said: "The fire department has been given instructions not to use its sirens except when necessary. According to the firemen, they must use the sirens when driving through traffic in order to avoid accidents." He also expressed confidence that some solution could be worked out.

Rangers Reveal Facts About Big Commando Attack

Three Americans Heard in Interesting London Program

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—One ranger plucked a sour apple in a Dieppe orchard in the midst of battle, another blazed away at a sniper in a tree, and a third picked up an American flier who had floated down from the sky.

Three plain Americans—a former railroad worker from Minnesota, an ex-bartender from Ohio, and a one-time magazine salesman from North Dakota—told today what they did during the giant Commando raid on Dieppe early this week.

Staff Sgt. Ken Stimpson, of Russell, Minn., Sgt. Alex Szima, of Dayton, O., and Corp. Bill Brady, of Grand Forks, N. D., were interviewed in London on the army hour program carried by the National Broadcasting Company.

They Had Their Job

"The job of our commando was to deal with two pill-boxes on the top of a cliff," Stimpson said. "Then we had a certain perimeter; we had to spread out and stop everything from bothering the men who were going to blow up the coast defense guns."

"How did you feel before it all began?" the three were asked by John MacVane, NBC war reporter. Corporal Brady said: "I don't know how Sgt. Stimpson felt, but I had a kind of crawling feeling in my stomach. One of the Commandos slapped me on the back and gave me confidence. I'm sure I didn't think at all; I didn't have time."

"We had to race across the beach as they were firing at our boats. We had to scale ladders to get up where we were going, and when we were faced with barbed-wire we had to cut right through it."

Under Heavy Fire

"We had to take cover from one of the other pill boxes 200 yards away. The machine gun fire was pretty thick down in that gully, and you could hear the snipers . . . Then Germans came upon us. We waited until they got within fifteen yards to give it to them. We dropped three of four and the rest scattered."

Sergeant Szima declared he was with a party which went to destroy the German coastal defense guns. On the way to the guns, he said, his group passed through an orchard and exchanged shots with snipers hidden in the trees.

His Hat Shot Off

"One sniper's bullet knocked my shock cap off," Szima said. "I didn't wear a helmet, just the regular commando cap . . . I scooped my cap up and went on with the rest of them. I was standing near a stable and a German threw a hand grenade out of the window when my back was turned, but I was lucky for just at that moment I stepped around a corner."

"The Germans looked like puppets standing at the big field guns. They all opened fire together. Overhead the R.A.F. was gunning them. It seemed just a few seconds before all the gunners were down."

Then the voices of the three men intermingled and finally one voice broke through:

"When we were passing an orchard, the Commandos grabbed apples. The one I grabbed was wrinkled. The fellow behind me grabbed two. They were sour, kind of wild apples. I guess . . .

"As soon as our job was done we took it on the lam to the boat. There, machine guns and snipers and everything were shooting at us. The Commandos ran and performed just like we had done in practice. We finally got down to the beach and on to the boat."

"Did you fellows have a quiet trip back?" asked MacVane.

"Yes," the voice said. "But just as we started out a pilot bailed out right near us. We picked him up and found he was an American army flier."

states might be drawn into the war against the Axis was being studied. The decision of Brazil for a military show-down with the Axis, it was said, is sure to have a profound influence in the attitudes of Uruguay, Colombia and Venezuela, which are believed here to be on the verge of war, and on Argentina and Chile which are still maintaining diplomatic relations with the Axis powers.

On the surface the most obvious evidence that Brazil had joined the United Nations in war was the effort to break up a huge potential Fifth column.

The population was calm today after noisy demonstrations last night and streets of Rio de Janeiro and other cities were still littered with signs and placards bearing the legend "death to Germany."

Feeling against Fifth column activity in Brazil was high because citizens were convinced it was agents in their midst who communicated with Axis submarines which sank five Brazilian vessels off the coast of Bahia last week.

So intense did the hunt for unreliable and suspected persons become that in several communities, specially along the coast, citizens of German and Italian blood were reported to be registering voluntarily at police headquarters to protest innocence, to give information on espionage activities which they disapproved, and to ask for protection against demonstrators.

Eight Births Are Reported in Hospitals Here over Weekend

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. William S. Jenkins, Frostburg, yesterday afternoon in Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Nave, Bedford Valley, Pa., announce the birth of a son at noon yesterday in Memorial hospital. Mrs. Nave formerly was Miss Pauline Hinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Hinkle, 8 Virginia avenue.

Pythians Will Meet In Frederick on September 15-16

Odith M. Brotemarkle, grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias Grand Lodge, announced Saturday that the annual K. of P. convention scheduled to be held in Baltimore Sept. 15 and 16 has been transferred to Frederick.

Brotemarkle, who attended a meeting of the executive board in Baltimore last week said the change was made because of the inability to secure satisfactory hotel accommodations in Baltimore which is overcrowded with war workers.

Approximately 200 Pythians and Pythian Sisters, including a large delegation from Cumberland are expected to attend the convention. Headquarters will be in the Francis Scott Key hotel. Last year the convention was held in Cumberland.

Lawyer Legge Moves Into Cobey's Office

George W. Legge, local attorney and former mayor, has taken up offices in the Liberty Trust Building suits formerly occupied by W. Earle Cobey, adjacent to the offices of Attorney General William C. Walsh.

Mr. Cobey left last week for the U. S. Naval Air Station, Quonset Point, R. I., where he entered service as a lieutenant. Mr. Cobey had been associated with Mr. Walsh in the practice of law here for the eight years since his admittance to the Bar.

CAA Locates District Office in Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Authority announced it would locate a district office at the airport here and assign a staff immediately.

The district the local office will govern includes a range of approximately seventy-five miles from Hagerstown and takes in Cumberland, Chambersburg, Pa., and Frederick.

The CAA said the Hagerstown airport was selected because it is one of the finest small city airports in the east and because it has had an excellent civilian pilot training school.

Missing Gunner Reported Safe

Corp. Paul Harmon, son of Mrs. Dorothy Harmon, 312 Grand avenue, said to be missing in the South Pacific as a result of action August 10, Saturday was reported alive and well in a message received by his mother.

Young Harmon enlisted at the local army recruiting station in June 1941 and was a gunner on an airplane.

R. F. Beveridge, of Cresaptown, who with fourteen others recently graduated from the Air Force Training Center, Napier Field, Ala., received the rank of flying staff sergeant, the newest rank of the United States Army Air Force.

A flying staff sergeant is a man of parts when he's around an airplane, qualified to fly it, service it and act as a radio technician on flights. Men for this diversified training are hand-picked from the ranks.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Beveridge, Cresaptown, Flying Staff Sergeant Beveridge was a laboratory assistant at the Celanese plant before he joined the army in April, 1941. Three months later he was transferred to the air forces. He is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Porter, Columbia avenue, and a grandson of Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, Shriver avenue and is stationed at the Army Air Base, Greenville, S. C.

Police Charge Two Men With Disorder after Baltimore Street Chase

A chase down Baltimore street from the vicinity of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks almost to George street at 9 o'clock Saturday night resulted in charges of disorderly conduct being entered against Harry L. Youngblood and Harold Ralston, both of Cumberland, by Officers Arthur Kennell and E. M. Powell.

During the course of the chase, in which officers said, Youngblood was trying to catch Ralston and police were trying to catch both men, Ralston ran into an automobile which stopped in time to prevent serious injury.

Brick Plants

quired they say to bake the brick, depending upon the grade and type.

Men Vote on Organizing

A spokesman for the company said last night that there had been two votes taken at the Ellerslie brick yard by the workmen there to determine if a union should be organized. The first vote resulted in a tie and the second vote resulted in the majority of the men voting against unionization at Ellerslie.

The spokesman for the company said that a few days later there had been some furloughs at the plant because there was not sufficient work for the men. As the plant gets into operation the company will in all probability take the men back, as work for them develops, the spokesman added.

In April of this year, the workers at the brick yards and clay mines in Mt. Savage took a strike vote but the stoppage was averted at that time when members agreed to accept a new contract with five cents an hour increase. It was also agreed that an additional increase would be given the men if and when the price of bricks advanced.

Besides providing for an increase of five cents an hour, the contract at that time called for a week's vacation with $30. pay and for a forty hour week, made up of five eight hour days, with time and half time for overtime.

A year prior to the last contract agreement there was a two-day work stoppage at the plant before an agreement was reached.

Will Picket Operations
Last May 30, there was a serious fire at one of the yards, when a new automatic brick making kiln was destroyed following an explosion. Loss and damage at that time was placed at $250,000. The kiln is still in the process of being rebuilt and a part of this plant has been in operation.

There has been no violence as a result of the present work stoppage and union officers said last night that the men are in a good frame of mind but determined to settle the present and a number of other lesser grievances before they return to work.

Men plan to picket the operations beginning today and a meeting of the local union is scheduled for this evening. A national representative of the workers' union and an official from the labor and an official from the company were expected to arrive late last night for conferences with the men and company officials today.

The brick plants and clay mines are operations of the Union Mining Company with Fred C. Strickland, superintendent.

Skilled Men

relationships be disturbed as little as possible, but some disruption of these relationships will be unavoidable. It is a difficult choice between a man without dependents who is essential to war production and a family man who is not performing essential work.

Mut Win War

"The solution, however, must be this: 'We must win this war. To win it, we need men to fight and men to make weapons and essential goods. Neither is effective without the other. So we are doing our utmost to keep those men in industry whose services are essential in war production and who cannot be replaced on the job. We are also going to be forced to take those men for the armed services who are eligible for military duty and are not performing essential work. The skill a man possesses is not the measure of his indispensability; it is the use he makes of that skill."

"Our performance of duty will be greatly aided if skilled workers in non-essential industry will transfer voluntarily to those plants which are making weapons of war."

Rainbow Climaxes Nearly Twenty Hours Of Steady Rainfall

Shortly before sun-down last evening, rain which had fallen almost continually yesterday and Saturday night ceased, temperatures dropped about ten degrees, and a colorful rainbow arched across the sky.

The first rainbow seen here for many months, it was a spectacle which caused many people throughout the city to stop and stare, watching until it gradually faded and disappeared.

Streams throughout the county were muddy and slightly swollen as a result of the continual down-pour. In some sections gardens and lawns were washed out, although no serious damage from any section is reported.

Automobile Is Badly Damaged by Fire; Three Cushions of Seftee Burn

The automobile of Woodrow Elliott, of Pennsylvania, was badly damaged by fire at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Firemen from East Side fire station responded to the call on Leiper street and were out for fifty-five minutes.

A red seftee at the Enterprise Amusement Company, 126 North Centre street, was damaged by fire at 9:48 a. m. yesterday. Firemen from Central fire station, who responded to the call, said three cushions were damaged. They said they thought the fire was caused by a cigarette.

when it is realized that forty per cent of all canned goods will be taken by the military forces this winter and another thirty-five per cent must be shipped to Britain and other allied nations it is easy to understand why there will be little on the market for Americans.

Of course no one in America is going to be permitted to go hungry. Miss Loar says, but all should realize the importance of food in the war effort and should do all they can as individual families to help store a surplus for coming winter months.

NOTICE TO THE TAXPAYERS OF ALLEGANY COUNTY, MARYLAND

That the County Commissioners of Allegany County, Maryland, have determined that it is necessary and desirable for the public good that they borrow the sum of thirty-seven thousand five hundred ($37,500.00) dollars and expend the same during the current fiscal year beginning April 1, 1942, and ending March 31, 1943, to be expended by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, for the purpose of erecting a new fire station at the intersection of the County Commissioners of Allegany County is in excess of the levy dated April 1, 1942, and ending March 31, 1943.

That on April 21, 1942, the County Commissioners of Allegany County signed a levy budgeting its expenses for the current fiscal year beginning April 1, 1942, and ending March 31, 1943, and fixing its tax levy for said period, and in connection therewith, made available such sums of money as could reasonably be foreseen would be necessary for all purposes for said fiscal year, and that the County Commissioners of Allegany County did not anticipate that any money would be necessary for the purpose of erecting a new fire station at the intersection of the County Commissioners of Allegany County is in excess of the levy dated April 1, 1942, and ending March 31, 1943.

That the aforementioned proposed expenditure of thirty-seven thousand five hundred ($37,500.00) dollars by the County Commissioners of Allegany County during the current fiscal year constitutes an expenditure of more money than has been previously levied upon the taxable basis of Allegany County to meet the necessary expenses of said County and constitutes an expenditure in excess of the levy dated April 1, 1942.

That the said County Commissioners of Allegany County propose to borrow said sum of thirty-seven thousand five hundred ($37,500.00) dollars upon promissory note or notes upon such terms and at such rate of interest as the said County Commissioners of Allegany County may deem most advantageous, which said promissory note or promissory notes shall be payable out of the current fiscal year for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1943, or with the proceeds of the sale of bonds which may be issued and sold for the purpose of paying such promissory note or promissory notes.

That the said County Commissioners of Allegany County will meet at their offices in the Court House, Cumberland, Maryland, on Tuesday, September 1st, 1942, at ten o'clock a. m., to determine the advisability of making said expenditure of thirty-seven thousand five hundred ($37,500.00) dollars in excess of the levy dated April 1, 1942, and of making such loan or loans as said County Commissioners of Allegany County may consider necessary therefor, and at said meeting any taxpayer who may appear shall have the right to be heard in opposition to any such expenditure or loan or loans that said expenditure may occasion.

Parallel Situations
In Two States

CONDITIONS in West Virginia with respect to excessive taxation and governmental extravagance bear a striking parallel with those of Maryland, according to resolutions adopted the other day at the Ohio county Republican convention held over at Wheeling.

Pointing out that financing of the war will impose a burden upon the taxpayer, public so great that every other governmental expenditure must be cut to the bone, the resolutions of the convention focused the spotlight upon the West Virginia situation in rather emphatic language.

"In spite of this situation," the resolutions set forth, "we have a state administration which has just concluded the most extravagant year in the history of West Virginia; which has put more people on the public payroll and paid them more money than any other administration West Virginia has had; which has raised taxes higher than ever before in this state, and which has turned a deaf ear to all pleas for governmental economy."

"We assert that taxes in West Virginia could be and should be reduced at least twenty-five per cent, and declare specifically for reduction of rates in the gross sales tax, outright repeal or drastic reduction in the personal income tax and higher exemptions in the consumers' sales tax."

The parallel is not exact, but it is strikingly similar. Maryland has not been able to get away with the riotous and unrestrained extravagance described in the foregoing resolutions. It has not been as extravagant as it had planned to be but only for the reason that active taxpayers' organizations, an alert press and a tide of public protest prevented it from carrying out its budgetary plans and forced some reductions in listed expenditures. Even at that it has probably achieved new high records in spendings.

The Maryland administration did bring about some reduction in the state realty taxes and Governor O'Connor is commendably committed to their eventual elimination, in which direction it may be hoped he will travel beyond political opportunism. Even here a might have taken a lesson from the more satisfactory manner in which West Virginia has handled its realty tax problem under its tax limitation program, which was instituted, it is pertinent to note, several years back under Republican guidance.

But where the Maryland administration achieved that, it plunked down an inexcusable, onerous burden of income taxation, which more than offset any savings in that direction.

The Ohio county convention struck out for a flat reduction of twenty-five per cent in the total tax bill "at least." A similar cut is needed in Maryland and might be effected if unwarranted government embroileries were eliminated or trimmed down. But in noting any parallel here, let no one be misled by the plea of Governor O'Connor for a like reduction in the Maryland state income taxes as meaning a twenty-five per cent reduction in the total tax bill. O'Connor here would be merely returning money improperly taken from the people to bring about an excessive state surplus apparently for future political operations.

In view of the fact that the income taxes in Maryland were subjected to the outrageous boost of 500 per cent over what was probably too much anyway, and in view of the enormous war program, it might be possible and wise to do as the West Virginia convention recommended for its own state and wipe it out altogether. At the least there should be the "drastic" reduction the West Virginia convention recommended for its state, and the O'Connor recommendation is not entitled to that description.

Cheese Can Help the Victory Program

DOMESTICALLY-PRODUCED CHEESE is the victory food special in the United States for the two-week period ending August 29. Patriotic Americans are asked to increase their consumption of this excellent food to help conserve meat supplies essential for war purposes. Many Americans have neglected this nutritious food.

Every school child interested in statistics in food consumption knows that European peoples, especially those of Western Europe, have eaten annually from two to four times the amount of cheese consumed by Americans, and no one will be likely to say that Europeans have not been strong and healthy.

Cheese has a long and distinguished history. It is mentioned in several places in the Old Testament. The Greeks and Romans considered it a staple food for at least 1000 years before the Christian era. The Jews and Romans, recognizing its strength-giving properties, fed it to their troops because of its convenient concentrated form, and the Greeks gave it to their wrestlers to give them endurance. The experience of the Greeks indicates it would be just the thing for young men training for Commando activities.

Britannica discloses that while cheese is marketed throughout the world under 400 or 500 different names, there are probably only about eighteen distinct varieties. But most of them are good, and America produces a large number. In fact, since the war cut off importations of European cheeses, the varieties produced on this side of the Atlantic have increased. Wisconsin now produces more than two-thirds of the cheese made in America.

Scrap Campaign Is Really Serious

LOCAL INDUSTRIALISTS have informed the chamber of commerce directors that the need for the collection of scrap metals is more serious than the people generally understand it to be.

That being the case, and the efficient prosecution of the war program being the goal of all, it behooves everybody in the Cumberland area to exert intensive efforts in support of the work undertaken by the committee headed by W. Donald Smith.

"American production cannot work to win unless waste materials of all kinds are quickly collected and returned to mills and factories for ultimate conversion into armament," Hamilton W. Wright says. He is chief of the Industrial Salvage section in the Conservation division of the War Production Board.

Wright told this to some 200 Baltimore industrialists, pointing out that, while Maryland had contributed 22,000 tons of iron and steel scrap, and 7,000 tons of non-ferrous metals since April 1, its iron and steel scrap quota, based on a weighted analysis made by the federal Bureau of Mines, is 173,000 tons for the state by December 31.

The extension of the collection drive will not be so easy as it was at the beginning, and while the state has made a substantial contribution to date, it is apparent that its people must make extraordinary efforts if it is to do its proper share in helping along the armament program.

Something else difficult to understand is one federal official saying that during war living standards must decline, while another demands that no matter what happens, America's high standard of living must be maintained.

Hitler, a news cable tells us, sent Mussolini best wishes on his birthday. And now Il Duce can drop quietly from public view for another year.

The Brower's Bookshelf

By MARSHALL MASLIN

The Brower has just had a great time reading Donald Barr Chidsey's biography of "John the Great: The Times and Life of a Remarkable American, John L. Sullivan," (Doubleday Doran).

You must understand, of course, that the Brower was born too late to know anything about the noble cloud of fame which surrounded the Boston Strong Boy. The first championship fight that HE remembers was held in 1910 when Jeffries was worn down by Jack Johnson and all the men in his little town were heartbroken and humiliated. But once he knew an old Irishwoman who never, never forgave Jim Corbett for beating the great John L. She had but one comment on that achievement and it was "He had very LITTLE to do!"

In the barber shop where the Brower had his first shave there was Charles Dana Gibson's great pen and ink sketch, "The Champion," but the champion in that picture looked more like Corbett than Sullivan and it never satisfied the fledgling Brower.

In his more recent years, however, the Brower has met a few champions in newspaper sportsrooms—such characters as Tom Sharkey whom he sees every week sitting in a hotel lobby, Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, and others of that ilk and ilk. . . . But none before John L. Sullivan, or after, had the glamor of this bully boy.

As John P. Marquand says in his introduction when Sullivan seemed but a dull, quarrelsome, bragging bully when he was drunk (and he drank copiously). He made a million dollars and tossed it all away. He set a bad example in almost every way. He was not a laudable example. And yet, he was the idol of his day—and to the end of his life he was an imposing character. . . . and "by some amazing alchemy his memory has outlived the Gaults and the Sages and the Harrimans and the Vanderbilts."

Read Mr. Chidsey's crisp and unsentimental story and you will discover this was done by virtue of his personality. And who can define personality?

The Brower closed Mr. Chidsey's life of a pugilist and turned to Philip Van Doren Stern's novel "The Drums of Morning" (Doubleday Doran) and immediately found himself deep in a story that has far more significance and mean than any recital of the rise and fall of a Sullivan. Mr. Stern's novel is a re-ploughing of old ground. It is a distinguished panorama of the years that preceded the Civil war and the years of that war—a long, detailed and authentic tale of one Jonathan Bradford, the son of an Abolitionist who, himself, became an Abolitionist and lived to suffer for it.

It takes you through the years of the Underground Railroad, the tragic drama of John Brown's raid, the ghastly suffering of the Union prisoners in Andersonville prison—and then stops at the long bombardment of Charleston, when Jonathan Bradford goes back to his home and his sweetheart and "far down the valley saw a man take up his plow to begin a new furrow in a half-finished field."

The Brower herewith pays tribute to Hollywood. . . . Last week he saw the motion picture "Mrs. Miniver" and was delighted. Jan Struther's story was a collection of little stories about a British family before this war, slight and delightful sketches. Hollywood took those plotless tales, saved only Miss Struther's characters and feeling about English life, contrived a new complete plot and wrote in shadows on a screen the story she could have told, but didn't. . . . Don't miss it, says Marshall Maslin.

THE BROWER.

WPB Incompetent
Not All on One
Side, Mallon Says

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—CIO members of the War Production Board Labor Advisory committee have publicly called on Mr. Nelson to fire his dollar-a-year men from the business world in his housecleaning. They said these business men had not performed efficiently their jobs of handling raw materials.

If this CIO-recommended basis for the housecleaning is adopted, Mr. Nelson will also have to fire the men who made it, the whole Labor Advisory committee, AFL as well as CIO. They have not performed their jobs efficiently either.

The latest report from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, a strictly New Deal, pro-labor branch of Miss Perkins' Labor department, says there were 350 strikes in June and 275 in May, the months when our war production was supposed to hit its stride.

Strike Average Higher

These 350 strikes in June compare unfavorably with an average of 290 strikes in that month during the peacetime period of 1935-39. In short, there were sixty more strikes this war-time June than the average June before the European war broke out.

Other War Labor Board figures show 198 new defense industry strikes in July, compared with 171 in June, although fewer men were involved in July.

Thus it may be seen that the labor boys, who are telling their boss, Mr. Nelson (he is their boss in name at least), to fire business men for failure, have similarly failed to keep labor's contribution to the war effort at the required efficiency.

The labor boys probably heard the inside news going around town that the Truman committee has been preparing a report calling on Mr. Nelson to fire incompetents, particularly his dollar-a-year men—and that Mr. Nelson will not be angry when this report comes out. It will put a little more iron in his fist for getting tough, as he promised.

But you can see from the CIO recommendations, and from the established aversion of the Truman committee for dollar-a-year men, how the pressure for a particular kind of housecleaning, and not a general housecleaning on a basis of efficiency, is shaping up.

Four Classes

As pointed out yesterday, there are four classes of officials there, real business men, business hangers-on or marginal business men who have made a career of the New Deal, left-wing reformers who early saw the WPB as the proper agency in which to infiltrate so they could produce their social doctrines at the same time as war materials, and the real, earnest government economists and officials who think winning the war is the only social problem now.

If firings are going to be made on the basis of efficiency in groups, Mr. Nelson will rid himself, not only of the incompetent dollar-a-year men, but the incompetent reform elements as well.

Names are not necessary. He knows them. They include not only the labor leaders, who have failed to prevent strikes, but the professional theorists, who have

SAFEGUARDING BELL

Original plans for guarding the famous Liberty Bell in Philadelphia against damage during an air raid have been changed to prevent unnecessary waste of critical steel and armor plate. New plans are shown by the artist's sketch, above. Instead of being placed in a separate shelter, the bell will be lowered from its resting place in Independence Hall in the event of a raid to a vault directly below, which will not require, as much steel and concrete for protection.

ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT

Farley's Success as a Political Leader
Is Seen As Due to His Rugged Honesty

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Identified themselves with particular radical social doctrines of an extreme nature.

Impartiality Necessary

Men are not efficient by groups, however, efficiency generally is an individual matter. It is not true to say all dollar-a-year men are incompetent, all reformers or labor leaders efficient.

Efficiency, as the CIO has said, should be the only criterion applied by Mr. Nelson or the Truman committee, but it must be applied impartially, without regard for group pressure.

Mr. Nelson seems to have fairly well worked himself out of the initial move here to make him personally the only one responsible for disappointments in our production. But he can make out an even better case for himself if he will get tough.

He could say there was no time in the last six months when the army and navy could ship as much material as he produced.

He could say the army in its own M-day report, which was the original plan for this war, called for civilian control of production as essential.

Civilian Needs Neglected

He could say the public eye has been so centered on army and navy production by the government that the question of sustaining consumer business and civilian business has not been properly attended to, and that Germany's collapse in this respect caused it to lose the last war, according to Ludendorff.

He could say he did not even know about the radio broadcast a week ago Sunday when numerous other government officials told the world first about the crisis in production which would cause us to fall short of Mr. Roosevelt's goal.

The only question about Mr. Nelson is whether he is capable personally now of correcting the defects that have been discovered, or whether someone else might do it better, get tougher, cut cleaner and deeper.

Mr. Nelson at least has the advantage of experience. Any new man coming in would require months to familiarize himself with the problem.

Sail-Trimming
Now Due

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Our Washington correspondent writes that it is generally understood about the capital that "neither the president nor Mr. Wilkie will attempt to carry the purges any further."

We wouldn't be at all surprised. The people have spoken so eloquently with their ballots, they have so convincingly said that 100 per cent pro-Pearl Harbor support of the Roosevelt foreign policy is not a must qualification for congressional candidates, that we may look for some adroit sail-trimming in high political quarters between now and November.

Morning Motto

A satisfied flower is one whose petals are about to fall. The most beautiful rose is one hardly more than a bud wherein the pangs and ecstasies of desire are working for larger and finer growth—CARL SANDBURG.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—What is the true explanation of Jim Farley's success as a political leader?

Many people must have wondered that Farley was able to maintain his lines and nominate John J. Bennett, Jr., for governor even though the New Deal administration was trying to nominate someone else. The answer lies in the fact that Farley plays the political game straight from the shoulder. He is no double-crosser; no wily or slippery person who says one thing today and something else tomorrow. He doesn't wiggle out of a pledge or commitment "but stands firm."

Ever since American politics has developed strong leaders who could wield organizational power, this quality of leadership has been effective. Even the old-fashioned political bosses were men of their word. No matter what the commitment, they stood behind it. That was the secret of their remarkable power over their lieutenants and workers.

Not a Boss

Jim Farley is perhaps the outstanding genius of political organization in our times and yet he is not a boss or a politician in the adverse sense that the term so often is used. He is honest and incorruptible. He never has profited from his years of public service. He came out of Washington very much in the hole financially because he refused to use his public position for personal gain.

Jim Farley could have become the compromise candidate for governor. The administration would have been glad to withdraw Mead for that purpose and make a gesture of harmony. There was strong pressure on Farley to let go of Bennett and take the nomination himself. But he never allowed that kind of a compliment to influence him in the slightest though it is known he has at different times wished that he could be governor of New York state.

But Farley had given his word to Bennett to go down the line for him and that meant there could be only one candidate before the New York convention whom the former postmaster general could support.

Big Contrast Presented

Many observers are contrasting Farley's conduct before this New York state convention with the president's tactics. Mr. Roosevelt had a conference with Farley at the White House several weeks ago. He didn't at that time oppose Bennett, and Farley went away convinced that the chief executive wouldn't fight Bennett. But a short while thereafter, the administration began pulling wires to get a candidate other than Bennett and finally Senator Mead was prevailed upon to let himself be "drafted."

Mr. Farley assailed these draft tactics as artificial and as contradictory of all that had gone before. Many of the organization men in the New York state Democratic party knew all the facts and recognized the administration's effort to knife Farley and they didn't like it.

There were few issues in that convention that had any remote resemblance to public policies. The real issue was whether Jim Farley would be stabbed in the back because of his loyalty to another Democrat who had served the party faithfully for many years and had allowed his name to be offered for many months while the delegates were being lined up in a fair pre-convention battle. The spectacle of the White House interfering in a sudden attempt to oust Farley from the leadership of New York state Democracy with the ostensible purpose of picking Mead as the gubernatorial nominee was not lost on the organization workers, who do not like that sort of thing.

Mr. Roosevelt was poorly advised to get into the fray. He hurt his own record by allowing history to record that in the midst of the gravest crisis in America's annals he took any time to mix in a New York party fight that could be construed as related to possible fourth-term ambitions in 1944.

It is being suggested that the defeat of the president's intervention shows the whole world that we are a democracy and that we do not have a political dictator in the White House. That is very true but this impression, however favorable, was not created intentionally by the administration spokesmen or lieutenants in New York state.

It has been suggested also that the president likes politics, that it is a kind of game which he likes to play and that it was just a bit of relaxation in the midst of his hard work on the war. Maybe it was just a bit of good fun—anyway, Jim Farley won and millions of persons, irrespective of party, are glad that this victory came to a man of his talents and character.

Substitute
For Tea

Doctor Tells in Magazine
How It Can Be
Brewed from Herbs

If you're worried about tomorrow's coffee or tomorrow afternoon's tea, you'll be glad to know about some of the substitutes that are on the market.

The best imitation of China tea, according to Dr. Anna H. Koffler, herb expert who has studied the substitute beverages recently introduced in Europe, is a combination of dried strawberry, raspberry or blackberry leaves with an equal equal amount of peppermint or thyme or lemon thyme.

However, Dr. Koffler, writing in the current issue of The Woman Magazine, advises American cooks to experiment, with other combinations. Many Europeans have drunk tisanes for centuries, brewing them from camomile, peppermint, sage, anise, berry leaves, linden, lemon balm, thyme, lavender, elder and orange blossoms. Most of these herbs are easy to grow and many of them are now widely sold separately as well as in ready-prepared combinations.

The herb leaves are easy to prepare. "Over one teaspoon of leaves or herbs pour a half pint of boiling water. Let this stand for five minutes, strain it, and there you are," says Dr. Koffler in The Woman. "Tisanes should be brewed in earthenware or heat-resistant glass utensils, and you should use glass or silver spoons for stirring. Sweeten your tisane with honey—not because of the sugar rationing, but because it really tastes better."

For a Liberty tea such as our grandmothers brewed after the Boston Tea Party, Dr. Koffler specifies a combination of herbs and blossoms "plus an infusion of bee balm, which any New Englander will tell you makes one of the best drinks in the world."

Signs Say Hitler
Isn't So Popular
In Germany Now

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Hints that Herr Hitler isn't as popular as he was, right in Germany, have been afloat recently in the United Nations various capitals. Washington among 'em and they're beginning to be given some little attention.

Of course they're vague and don't come directly from Reich sources, but from the few remaining neutral European countries, which probably have to rely largely upon more or less unreliable rumors, or are smuggled over from Germany over-run territory. Nevertheless the Nazis themselves leak, doubtless unintentionally, a bit of information that sounds rather confirmatory of the gossip referred to.

Death Decried in Advance

One item, vouchered for by Berlin, as a warning, is to the effect that death is decreed in advance as a penalty for the slightest help given to Axis army deserters. All border stations and ports, it's stated, are searched minutely.

Now, if desertion progresses at such a rate as to require these drastic precautions, isn't it a fair conclusion that there must be quite a lot of it? The epidemic described as particularly prevalent in East Prussia. That's just where it might have been looked for. It's a tolerably convenient area to escape from, out of Germany.

Furthermore, the East Prussians aren't overly enthusiastic Germans. Their region's name perhaps implies that they ought to be, but they include a large Slav infusion. They were decidedly clammy toward the kaiser in the last war.

Narcotics Climbing

Then there's the whole Reich's civilian morale! Is that going floozy?

It isn't a very favorable symptom if folk are taking to narcotics, as represented the other day in an article in a Zurich medical publication. The author, an expert on the subject, surmises that desire for relief from the worry of air raids is responsible for what he calls the "unbearable increase" in drug addiction.

However, another explanation is offered.

It may be remembered that, some weeks ago, the Berlin government, as a rationing measure, cut down on drinks, especially beer, almost to zero. It occurred to me right then, and I mentioned it, that I didn't believe the average German would survive long with his beer abolished. The theory is that he's taking to opium and morphine as substitutes.

Pledged to Franco?

The story's current that Adolf has pledged himself to Dictator Franco of Spain for a grab at Portugal by the latter. If it's true, it can't but imply that the fuhrer's making a bid for another ally, and the best guess is that he wouldn't make the offer unless he needed to.

Franco, as a matter of fact, is said to be mobilizing his forces apparently for some sort of an expedition.

And it's official that the Portuguese are doing as much military and naval concentrating as their diminutive resources are capable of.

Nobody questions that a unified Spain could lick Portugal in short order. Spain isn't unified, though. Dictator Franco had a hard civil war to fight to establish himself, and the betting is that the beaten element will rebel against him at the first opportunity.

Incidentally, there's a Western hemispherical angle to the Spanish-Portuguese situation. Brazil, speaking generally, is as Portuguese as its parent land. Their relationship's comparable to that of a feeble, elderly mother and a young and pretty husky daughter. I fancy that the Brazilians wouldn't stand by tamely with Dictator Franco trying to assimilate the old lady.

Reaction a Puzzle

Just how the Spanish part of Latin America would react to that kind of friction is a problem to puzzle any internationalist.

Getting back strictly to Germany—Herr Goebbels's yowls to his countrymen to stand the gaff unflinchingly are causing considerable wondering if they aren't doing a certain amount of flinching.

Among other things, Nazi's persecution of religion is being increasingly publicized. All being said and done, there are some religious Germans. Besides Jews there are Catholics.

It's only reported, but it IS reported, that plenty of discontent's developing among 'em.

The ferocity of Nazi threats and the savagery of their fulfillment give an impression of a realization, on their part, of the pressure for extreme measures. The dope is that they wouldn't, in common sense, be so vicious if popular hatred of 'em didn't necessitate it, from their standpoint.

Factographs

The name "Bird of Paradise" is erroneously given to several South American birds which are not of this species. All of the fifty species of the birds are found only in New Guinea and Australia.

Sixteen states own and operate alcohol monopolies doing an annual business of more than $264,500,000.

Parents Advised To Have Children Read Aloud More

Dr. Myers Says Silent Reading Contributes Little to Vocabulary

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
You probably know that in the average schoolroom of today children rarely read aloud, particularly above the second grade. Silent reading is the rage.

Children are taught to look at sentences and paragraphs and then to answer questions on the matter seen. Sometimes the questions are asked before the silent reading sometimes after it.

Parents realize how well the average child can get ideas from the printed page by merely "looking" over the words, not even moving their lips or attempting to pronounce the words. Some children can worm their way through a book in less than half the time it may take you and me to read it.

Silent Reading Is Faster
Some of us who are several years past sixteen must be surprised to find a child of 8 or 10 to be quicker than we are at silent reading. Those who learn to pronounce aloud every word as they read it find rapid reading difficult.

Silent reading does not contribute much to vocabulary, and to forms of expression. Even some school authorities are beginning to say they believe oral reading in the school has been too much neglected.

Whether it has or not, you and I can do our children good by encouraging them to read aloud at home.

Persuade your child to read aloud to you from material which he can read with great ease and, therefore, with pleasure. Learn to listen courteously so he will enjoy the reading. Make him feel that it is entertaining you, and he will want to go on. Let him believe he is merely reciting another lesson, and he will find reading aloud unattractive.

How fine it is for the junior or senior high school pupil to read aloud some of his assignments to his parents.

Children Reading Aloud
Where there is more than one child in the family induce the older to read to the younger. Babies before they are two years old enjoy being read to. There is nothing finer for their education and happiness if frightening stories are avoided. When you read to a young child you amuse him, stimulate his imagination, give him language patterns, and motivate him later on to read. You also become more companionable to the child. So does an older child who reads to a younger brother or sister.

A selected list of books for reading to the baby and young child may be had by writing me at 235 East Forty-fifth Street, New York City, enclosing a self-address envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Vic Mature's Casting Dictated by Public

It looks as though the movie-going public can get enough of strapping Victor Mature, because Twentieth Century-Fox, whose casting is naturally dictated largely by what the public wants, has starred him in a major production for the fifth time this year in "Footlight Serenade" now at the Strand Theater. He shares stellar billing in the film with Betty Grable and John Payne.

This rising popularity is all the more remarkable, considering that young Victor never set foot in Hollywood until two years ago. Another studio borrowed him for the lead in "Shanghai Gesture." His other films were "I Wake Up Screaming," "Song of the Islands" and "My Gal Sal." His current starrer was directed by Gregory Ratoff and produced by William LeBaron.

Irv Carroll's Band Appearing at Maryland

Irv Carroll, piano-playing maestro, who is appearing with his orchestra and the "Little Tough Guys" at the Maryland theatre today, wears a platinum wrist watch inscribed "To our first accompanist—with love, Joan and Barbara Dempsey." The watch, presented to Irv on the occasion of the first anniversary of his orchestra's engagement at Jack Dempsey's famous Broadway restaurant in New York—was presented to him by the two young daughters of the ex-heavyweight boxing champion and Mrs. (Hannah Williams) Dempsey.

The two youngsters are not the first well-known songstresses whom Irv Carroll has accompanied on the piano. Included in that category are such singing stars as Martha Raye, Ella Logan, Gertrude Niesen, Harriet Hilliard and Joy Hodges.

Irv Carroll's orchestra is well known to radio audiences coast-to-coast. For two years they broadcast three or four times weekly over the Mutual network. They are popular recording artists. Their dance

Orson Welles produced and directed this dramatic story of a spoiled son of wealth who wrecks the family fortunes and sends his devoted mother to an unhappy grave. The action moves against a background of gilded cat-tails, rococo hat-stands, ginger-bread architecture and a hundred other atrocities of the 1885-1913 era in rural America.

The principal roles are enacted by Joseph Cotton, Dolores Costello, Anne Baxter, Tim Holt, Richard Bennett, Agnes Moorehead, Ray Collins and Erskine Sanford.

A sketching and photographing trip through the Maine woods, covering all seasons of the year, provided authentic backgrounds for Walt Disney's new feature production, "Bambi," released by RKO Radio, starting Thursday at the Liberty.

Barnett Parker has the kind of face about which people usually say, "Who's he—I've seen him before." Not one visitor on the set of "Hit Parade of 1941" failed to make the remark about him during a scene in which he plays opposite

Hugh Herbert. Although the English actor has played comparatively minor butler and gentlemen's gentleman roles in a number of pictures, he has a "something" about his face that an observer never forgets, and he is often recognized by the public sooner than some of the bigger Hollywood lights. He has previously played in two Republic pictures, "The President's Mystery" and "She Knew Baker."

Emmanuel Church Guild Circles Are Reorganized

Officers Are Elected and Leaders for Groups Are Appointed

The Circle of Emmanuel Guild of Emmanuel Episcopal church were reorganized for the year at a meeting of the officers last week at the home of Mrs. John Bestwick, president, 801 Washington street. The circles were grouped according to localities to conserve gasoline and rubber.

Mrs. Bestwick also appointed the leaders for the different circles. They are: Mrs. Robert R. Henderson, St. Stephens; Mrs. W. G. Kraus, St. Ann; Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, St. Margaret; Mrs. A. W. Keight, St. Mary; Mrs. Wilbur Seymour, St. Francis; Mrs. Paul Martin-Dillon, St. John; Mrs. W. J. Wilkinson and Mrs. A. R. Tyler, St. Andrews and Mrs. L. B. Matthews, assisted by Mrs. Walter Eyer and Mrs. Walter Eyer and Mrs. Dudley Brown, St. Genevieve.

Committees and plans for the year will be announced at the first luncheon-meeting to be held at 1 o'clock October 13 in the Parish house. Other officers for the year besides Mrs. Bestwick are Mrs. James Pickett, first vice-president; Mrs. John Carscaden, second vice-president; Mrs. Robert R. Henderson, secretary and Mrs. G. H. Hetzel, treasurer.

D.A.R. SOCIETY WILL HOLD FALL MEETING ON CHESAPEAKE BAY

The annual fall meeting of the Maryland State Society, Daughters of the American Revolution will convene at 10 o'clock, Friday, Sept. 11, at the Maltape Club House located on the Chesapeake Bay at the Eastern terminus of the Annapolis Ferry.

A bus leaves Baltimore's terminal, Howard and Lombard streets at 7:50 a. m. for the 9 o'clock ferry at Annapolis. Mrs. Charles V. O. Terwilliger, 186 Duke of Gloucester Street, Annapolis, is taking the reservations for luncheon, which must be made before September 5.

An interesting program has been arranged by Mrs. George Hamilton Flapp, the state regent, who will preside. Mrs. Edward Webb Cooch, the national registrar general, will be the guest speaker, and state chairmen of committees will report on the work accomplished and outline their programs for the coming year's activities.

LADIES SHRINE CLUB WILL HAVE ANNUAL BANQUET TUESDAY

The Ladies Shrine Club will hold its annual fall banquet at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening at the All Ghian Shrine County Club. A special program of songs will be presented by Mrs. Harry Parker with Mrs. P. Thorne Smith at the piano.

Cards will feature the afternoon's entertainment beginning at 2:30 and prizes will be awarded for bridge, 500 and dominoes. The dinner committee includes Mrs. James Orr, chairman, Mrs. Alvin Haller, Mrs. Clifton White, Mrs. Fred Flurschutz, Mrs. Thomas Dunlap and Mrs. Morris Robinson. Approximately seventy-five members have made reservations.

Here's When Horse Beat Locomotive in Race Near Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Aug. 23 (P)—Just 107 years ago on Monday, Aug. 24, the first railroad train was drawn into Washington by the Atlantic locomotive—with engineer Joseph West at the controls.

And there was no little excitement as the train chugged into the capital. President Andrew Jackson's cabinet meeting dispersed, and the officials hopped into carriages to speed to Washington's first railroad station, at Pennsylvania avenue and Second street.

West had arrived at the city to take the "corporate officials" of Washington, Georgetown and Alexandria by train to Bladensburg. There, they were to meet the train from Baltimore in the morning. The ride on August 25 marked the official opening of the Baltimore and Washington Railroad, as the Washington branch of the Baltimore and Ohio was then known. August 25—Next Tuesday—is the anniversary also of the race between the "Tom Thumb," first American-built locomotive, and a horse.

That race was run in 1830, when the "Tom Thumb" was returning from Ellicott's Mills, Md. (now Ellicott City) thirteen miles from Baltimore. As the small train left Relay, so-called because horses were chained at that point, the driver of the horse car on the adjoining parallel track challenged Peter Cooper, engineer of the "Tom Thumb," to a race.

You probably know the rest: the "Tom Thumb" lagged behind until Cooper got up full steam ahead, and then forged a bit ahead, and then forged a bit ahead until the sell on the engine's drum slipped Cooper had to stop and fix it. And the horse won the race.

Comedy Drama "Bubbling Over" Will Be Given in High School Auditorium

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Aug. 23 — A three-act comedy drama, "Bubbling Over," sponsored by the Legion Auxiliary of Charles E. Kelly Post 112, will be given in the high school auditorium Monday and Tuesday evenings, August 31 and September 1.

The cast is being coached by Miss Lodema Corey, who arrived in town last week, and rehearsals are now in progress. The proceeds will go into a fund that is being raised for the payment of the balance of the indebtedness of the Legion home, recently purchased.

The cast, which is headed by Mrs. William A. Grasser, Dick Bolden, Robert Barber, Prof. George O. Pfingner, Mary Baldwin, Burton Baker, Dorothy Critchfield, Ann Adamson and Mrs. Leora Maul will number about seventy-five. About four hundred boys and girls from the grade schools will sing a comedy geography song, and present a number of vaudeville specialties, including three from Salisbury.

Meyersdale Girl Weds

Miss Palma Lucente, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Santo Lucente, Meyersdale, and Lieut. George Henigan, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Henigan, Grand Island, Neb., were united in marriage Monday, August 17, at 10:30 o'clock in SS. Philip and James Catholic church, Meyersdale, by the pastor, the Rev. Father Howard T. Miller, in the presence of about 100 guests.

The wedding music was played by Miss Frances D'Amico. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attired in a long white moire taffeta gown with a sweetheart neckline and a row of scalloped ruffles in the skirt. She carried a bouquet of white gardenias and baby's breath.

Her veil was fingered length and crowned with a halo of braided tulle and seed pearls. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Herbert S. Miller, Pittsburgh, as matron of honor, who wore a gown of gold taffeta and carried a shower bouquet of jasmine and yellow roses.

Attorney Frank S. Lucente, brother of the bride, was best man, and Herbert S. Miller, Pittsburgh, and Jack McCarty, State College, served as ushers. Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the New Colonial hotel, after which the couple left for an extended visit to New York.

Mrs. Henigan is a graduate of the Meyersdale high school and of Indiana State Teachers college, and for the past six years has been employed as a teacher of home economics in the high school at Oakland.

Mr. Henigan has been an instructor at Huron college, North Dakota, for several years, and is now a lieutenant in the United States Army.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Lawrence Fraley, Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, Mrs. Frank Smouse and Mrs. Nell Fraley, Oakland, Md.; Miss Margaret Lumpkin, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Gerald Iman, Kitzmiller, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. James Doyle, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Miller, Pittsburgh; Jack McCarty, State College; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Florentino and Mrs. Roger Tower, Cumberland, Md.

Wed in Cumberland

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Catherine Rombesburg, Rockwood, and Robert Ormond Baker, in a ceremony performed by the Rev. G. W. Baughman, Cumberland, August 7. The only attendant was Mrs. Walter Baker, Meyersdale, sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Baker entertained a number of their friends at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis P. Baker, High street. The couple will make their home in Cressapton, where Mr. Baker is in the employ of the Celanese corporation.

Mrs. Ethel Daubenspeck, wife of the Rev. Wayne Daubenspeck, and her three children, Columbia, S. C., who had been visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Richard F. Mason, Broadway street, since July 28, left yesterday for Selinsgrove, to visit the Rev. Daubenspeck's mother and other relatives, prior to their return home.

The Rev. Mr. Daubenspeck, who taught school in Connellsville, served as pastor of a Lutheran church in Oshkosh, Neb., was chaplain of the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., and Leavenworth, Kans., and later transferred to Fort Jackson, S. C., to become an army chaplain.

He was transferred to Seward, Alaska, to become a chaplain of a garrison of about 500 soldiers located there, and besides ministering to the spiritual needs of the soldiers he also supervises their recreational activities and edits a daily newspaper published exclusively by and for the armed forces in Alaska.

Unable to secure transportation to Alaska, Mrs. Daubenspeck and children may decide to dispose of their property in Columbia and come to Meyersdale to live with the former's mother.

Two other daughters of Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Louise Keller, Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. Catherine Hess, Wheeling, W. Va., with their husbands and children also spent last week at the Mason home.

Brooklyn Takes Another Stride Toward Pennant

Camilli Drives in All Flat-bush Runs in Opener; Ott Hits Two Homers

BROOKLYN, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers took another long stride in their drive toward their second consecutive National League pennant today by capturing a doubleheader from the New York Giants, 4-4 in ten innings and 7-5 in half that distance, before a crowd of 32,886.

Spectacular rallies in the final frames provided the Dodgers with both victory margins, giving them a sweep of the four-game series with the third-place Giants.

Immediately after the second game, the Dodgers entrained for St. Louis to open a four-game series tomorrow night with the second-place Cardinals, who split a double bill with the Pittsburgh Pirates today and slipped back seven and a half lengths behind the pace-setters.

Camilli Takes Charge
Captain Dolph Camilli took personal charge of the Brooklyn offense in the opener, driving in all six runs and winning the game with a grand slam homer in the last of the tenth.

Kirby Higbe went the distance for the Dodgers and yielded only six hits, one of them Mel Ott's twenty-third home run with a mate on base which put New York ahead in the sixth. The Dodgers tied it up in the home half of the same frame and the teams remained deadlocked at 2-2 until the tenth, when Johnny Mize blasted a two-run homer for the Giants, his twenty-first four-bagger of the year.

That looked like the ball game, but Pete Reiser and Lew Riggs, hitting the Brooklyn half of the inning with successive singles, Pete Reiser drew a walk, loading the bases, and Manager Ott removed Starter Hal Schumacher in favor of Harry Feldman.

Feldman made just one pitch, Camilli smashed it over the right field fence and the game was over.

Mungo Driven to Cover
Ott cracked his twenty-fourth homer in the nightcap, limited to five innings by darkness. Billy Sullivan put the Dodgers ahead with a two-run homer in the second and they tallied three times in the fourth, routing Starter Van Lingle Mungo. The Giants came back in the top half of the fifth with four runs which knocked Ed Head out of the box and tied the score.

Then in the last half, Billy Herman poled a single that scored two Dodger runners and the umpires decided it was too dark to start another inning. The scores:

Army-Navy Relief Gets Estimated $80,000 as Yanks, Nats Split

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—Babe Ruth, who "bult" the Yankee Stadium, came back today to fill it with fans—and gold—for Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors.

Naturally, the big guy, hitting two "home" off Walter Johnson, was the top attraction on the card, but a lot of help bringing $9,136 fans into the Bronx ball park to contribute an estimated $80,000 to Army and Navy relief.

But all you had to do was hear the folks holler for old Moonface to realize that the lure his big bat has always had for Gus Fun Fan works, and that he was the drum major in the parade that included a showing of what is left of the 55-year-old Johnson's smoke-ball, a doubleheader between the Yankees and Washington Senators, and a hitting-running-throwing field "meet" between players of both clubs.

Johnson Pitches 17 Times

After the Nats had come on with a ninth-inning three-run rally to take the first game 7 to 6, Ruth and Johnson stroled out to show the crowd how a couple of the greatest greats did it.

Benny Bengough, the little bald-headed man who used to catch for the Yanks in the Babe's heyday, was on the receiving end of the Big Train's slants, and Billy Evans, also turning back the clock, called balls and strikes.

Seventeen times Johnson pitched with that machine-smooth motion of his. Seven were balls. Two were called strikes. But two had the old Ruth trademark on them—right among the customers in the right field grandstand. And with the last one—which, to tell the truth, was slightly foul—the Babe gave it the old Ruthian flourish, circling the bases with his mincing, piecing-toed steps and acknowledging the roof-shaking roar with his traditional hatwag.

Case Wins 60-Yard Dash

Then he hugged Johnson and as they both stroled into the dugout, he remarked, "Nice going, Walter, and how are things down on the farm?"

Still the fans wanted more. While the funge-hitting contest was going on, they chanted "We want Ruth; we want the Babe," and they kept it up until the public address system advised one and all that "Mr. Ruth is taking a shower right now and can't come out."

The funge-hitting test went to Yankee Pitcher Red Branch with a 376-foot poke; the sixty-yard dash was an easy affair for Senator outfielder George Case; the catcher's accuracy-throwing competition was grabbed by Nat Reicher A Evans, and Case helped Washington down a Yankee quartet in a relay race around the bases. All winners received defense bonds as prizes.

Yanks, Nats Break Even

The Yankees and Senators broke even in their twin bill. After the Nats came from far back to take the opener, the Yanks piled on the right lead on Buck Newsom in the eighth and won out, 3 to 0, when the umpires called the game at the five and one-half-inning mark because of darkness, with Tiny Bonham chalking up his sixteenth win of the season.

The opener provided all the fireworks. The Yanks went out in front on Tommy Henrich's two-run homer and two-run single and Charley Keller's twenty-third four-bagger of the season, which was good for two more runs.

But Jimmy Vernon was a headache for Red Ruffing all afternoon, and drove in a total of five runs, two of them in the ninth-inning game-winning spree. Case also hit a homer for the Nats, thereby helping to spoil Ruffing's bid for his two hundred fifty-sixth big league victory.

Reliever Johnny Murphy, who was the victim of the ninth-inning rally, suffered his eighth straight defeat. The scores:

"The Authority on Authorities."

"PLEASE DO NOT BID"

THERE IS one situation in which your partner definitely makes that request of you. It is when he redoubles over an informative or takeout double of your bid by the player at your left. In a nutshell, he tells you that, if the opponent at your right then makes a bid, there is a very good chance the bid can be set badly, as his own hand is so strong. He tells you that, if you are unable to double that opponent's bid, you should not make a bid of your own, but should pass and give your partner a whack at it. The redoubler guarantees that, if he cannot double that opposing bid, he will make a bid of his own.

When South made that call of 2-Spades, he violated the underlying basis of the meaning of such a redouble by his partner. Since he could not double the bid himself, his job was to pass and see what North wanted to do. North would have doubled it. In fact, that is what happened at one table of a duplicate game where the bidding began the same way. East was set three tricks, losing one in spades, three in hearts, two in diamonds and two in clubs, giving North and South a score of 500 points.

South's taking out of East from 2-Hearts into 2-Spades shook him down off of the dangerous limb on which his side had climbed when West doubled. It resulted in North getting into a game contract which could be made, and which produced an extra trick. But that gave the side only 430 points.

About the only time when South should have bid on top of his partner's redouble would have been one in which he had such great suit length, in one or two suits, that the prospects were brilliant for a much better score playing the hand than on the defensive. But South had nothing freakish this time, and should have observed the customary procedure of experts.

How should South play this hand for 6-Spades after West leads the club K?

Brick Plants Are Idle as Men Call Work Stoppage

Approximately 425 Union Men Are Out at Mt. Savage and Ellerslie

Furloughing of Several Men Results in Workers Leaving Jobs

Three brick plants and one fire clay mine at Mt. Savage, one brick plant at Ellerslie and another brick mine at Barrelesville are closed today, as a result of a work stoppage called by members of United Construction Workers Local No. 193, which embraces the six operations.

The brick yard and mines, all properties of the Union Mining Company, have been employing over 500 persons and about 425 members of the union joined the walkout.

According to officers of the union, which is an affiliate of District No. 50, United Mine Workers of America, the work stoppage, or "holiday" as they term it, was called Saturday morning at about 7 o'clock when men in all the workings left their jobs because of a series of differences, climaxed during the past week when a number of members of the union were furloughed and other men employed to replace them.

Some Men Are Furloughed

Officers of the union organization say that the company recently acquired the brick yard operation at Ellerslie, and that this operation is the focal point of the latest trouble. Ten to fifteen men employed at the Ellerslie plant were union members or had announced their intention of becoming affiliated with the union.

These men union officials say were furloughed and their jobs taken over by others not affiliated with the labor union. They also contend that efforts to have the company put these furloughed men back to work have been unsuccessful.

The trouble first developed about Tuesday or Wednesday, the union members say and the work stoppage order was finally agreed upon by members Friday.

When the work stoppage was declared and became effective all members of the union left their jobs in the brick yards and the mines except firemen of bailers and firemen at the kilns. These workers, about thirty-five in number, were ordered to stay at their posts by the union. Union officials said this was done to prevent any loss of materials in the stage of production and also to maintain certain parts of the plant.

Union officials said the firemen will remain on the job until the bricks now in the kiln are baked unless there is further difficulty. From five to fifteen days are expected.

CANDIDATE—Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., Westernport attorney, Saturday accepted the offer of the slate-making committee of the Republican party in Maryland to run for attorney general and will oppose Attorney General William C. Walsh, of Cumberland at the November election.

Whitworth Will Run for State Attorney General

Westernport Lawyer Accepts Offer of Slate-making Committee

Two Allegany county lawyers will oppose each other for state attorney general as the result of the decision Saturday of Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., of Westernport, to accept the offer of the slate-making committee of the Republican party in Maryland to be its candidate for attorney general at the November election. His papers of candidacy were filed Saturday night in Annapolis.

Whitworth will oppose Attorney General William C. Walsh, of Cumberland, who is unopposed on the Democratic ticket.

The Republican committee decided not to enter a candidate on the ticket for state comptroller, leaving J. Millard Tawes, incumbent, unopposed for re-election. Several weeks ago Theodore R. McKeldin, Baltimore attorney, accepted the Republican gubernatorial bid of the committee.

A native of Westernport, Mr. Whitworth graduated from the University of Maryland Law School in 1904, one of the three honor men of his class. He is fifty-nine years of age and, since admittance to the bar, has practiced law in Allegany county, maintaining offices in Westernport, where he is associated in practice with his son, Horace P. Whitworth, Jr.

Active in Party Affairs

Mr. Whitworth has long been active in Republican party affairs, serving while a young man as chairman of the Allegany County Republican Committee. His first venture into politics was in a contest with the late Frederick N. Zihlman for the State Senatorship from Allegany county. Four years ago he ran against Associate Judge William A. Huster for the Republican nomination in the Fourth Judicial Circuit.

Mr. Whitworth has been president of the Allegany County Bar Association and is a former vice-president of the Maryland State Bar Association, for which latter group he is now serving on a committee to assist the governor in filling judicial vacancies throughout the state. He is a former mayor of Westernport.

General Counsel

Mr. Whitworth is counsel for the towns of Westernport and Luke and also for the National banks in both towns. He is a director in the Citizens National Bank of Westernport, general counsel for the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and the Potomac Light and Power Company, the West Virginia subsidiary of the Potomac Edison Company.

Mr. Whitworth is married and has four other children besides his son, Horace, Jr. They are Dr. F. Dixon Whitworth, Front Royal, Va.; Sergeant Richard H. Whitworth, stationed in Great Britain; David G. Whitworth, an electrical engineer with the Kelly-Springfield Engineering Company; and Miss Margaret Ann Whitworth, at home.

Food Is Playing an Important Part in America's War Effort

Assistant Home Agent Urges Housewives To Create Surplus Now

The kind of food the average American family consumes will have a great deal to do with winning the war, according to Margaret T. Loar, assistant home demonstration agent of Allegany county.

Commenting upon the importance of careful buying and also the importance of home canning, Miss Loar stated that too much importance cannot be placed upon the job of the average housewife and marketer for the home today.

With the canning season here every housewife should preserve every type of fruit and vegetable possible. Miss Loar urges, because as winter comes there is very likely to be a shortage of many food commodities customarily purchased in retail grocery stores and markets.

Draft Board One Plans to Induct Thirty-three Men

Group Will Fill First of Three Calls Expected in September

Thirty-three men will make up the first contingent of selectees registered with Local Board No. 1 to be inducted into the United States Army in September. Board officials expect three calls for men during the month.

The list of selectees slated for induction early in September was released yesterday. Names of men on the list follow:

Raymond J. Higgins, Little Orleans; Harry V. Long, 319 Springdale street; Thomas R. Campbell, 303 South street; Robert L. Butts, RFD No. 4, Oldtown road; Charles D. Schaidt, Oldtown; William C. Brinkman, 304 Pennsylvania avenue; Raymond C. Dorn, 607 Elm street; Nile J. Michael, 20 Arch street; Dewey D. Thompson, 206 Elder street; Franklin C. Pannone, 433 Race street; Raymond R. Duckworth, Oldtown.

Benjamin E. May, Flintstone; Ernest E. Roach, 1009 Michigan avenue; Alonzo B. Heavner, 44 Marion street; William W. Rizer, Flintstone; Robert V. Van Meter, RFD No. 1, Oldtown; Charles E. Robbinette, RFD No. 4, Oldtown road; Joseph Lacy Pulem, RFD No. 2, Box 602; Frank B. Humbird, RFD No. 4, Oldtown road; Raymond I. Phillips, 47 Humbird street; George E. Robbinette, 18 Oak street; Gerald W. Athey, 109 Laing avenue; Francis P. McCoy, 356 Williams street; Charles E. Broome, negro, transferred to Local Board No. 1 from Clinton, Pa.

Board No. 3 Will Call Some Class B Men for Induction Next Month

Officials of Local Draft Board No. 3 said Saturday that one or two men with Class B, dependents—parents, brothers or sisters—will receive induction orders in September and that the number for October will be somewhat larger.

Local Board No. 4 at Frostburg does not expect to see Class B men until December. Local Board No. 2 will need some of the Class B men in October while Local Board No. 1 expects to call single men with Class B dependents in November.

Board officials hesitate to predict how long it will be until married men are called but it is likely some will get notices this year. About 1,500 men in Allegany county have been inducted into the army through Selective Service out of a total eligible group of nearly 20,000. The latter group includes all registrants under 45. In addition to the 1,500 a large number has enlisted in the army, navy or marine corps.

Col. Henry S. Stanwood, state Selective Service director, said Saturday the entire pool of physically fit unmarried men will be exhausted by Christmas and that the first married men to be reclassified will be those without children.

"We expect to adhere closely to the expressed intent of Congress that family relationships be disturbed as little as possible," said Col. Stanwood, "but some disruption of these relationships will be unavoidable. It is difficult to choose between a man without dependents who is essential to war production and a family man who is not performing essential work."

Men with working wives with no children will be given first consideration. Next come men with non-working wives and finally men with wives and children or just children.

NEW FUNERAL HOME—On Friday, Saturday and Sunday the public will be welcomed at the formal opening of the new Kight Funeral Home, 309-311 Decatur street. William H. Kight acquired this property, known as the old Footer property, and has remodeled it into a modern funeral residence. Kight has been in business here since July of 1925, and was formerly associated with the late G. Stanley Butler.

Skilled Men in Non-Essential Jobs May Be Transferred to War Work

Draft Boards Will Select Men with Dependents Soon

Draft Officials Plan To Disturb War Production As Little as Possible

In connection with his previously announced plan to begin inducting married men and others with dependents into the armed forces by October, Col. Henry C. Stanwood, director of Selective Service for Maryland, said every effort will be made to disturb war production as little as possible.

Col. Stanwood said increasing numbers of skilled men can serve the country best by transferring from non-essential work to war production jobs. Skilled work in essential industry will become increasingly important as a basis for deferment of induction into the armed forces, Col. Stanwood said, for the reason that the weapons of war are needed as badly as the men to use them and there is an actual dearth of skilled men.

Will Take Young Men

Col. Stanwood assured A. A. Livright, area director of the War Manpower Commission, that the Selective Service officials will give full support to manpower commission's effort to effect voluntary transfer of essential workers into war plants and expressed the hope that employers and employees alike will co-operate to make the program a complete success.

"The pressure of requirements for the armed services has become so great in Maryland," Col. Stanwood said, "that we are now telling the war production industries that we must take their young men who can be replaced with men who are not subject to military service, or with women."

"Even though we take large numbers of young men with limited industrial training and skills, it appears inevitable that we must in the near future induct many men who are now in deferred classifications because they have dependents."

"According to present plans, when we make selections of men with dependents, we will give considerable weight to the occupational status of the man as well as to his dependency status. This will mean that we will induct few men, at least for the present, who have essential skills and are using them effectively for the war effort."

"We expect," said Col. Stanwood, "to adhere closely to the expressed intent of the Congress that family relationships be disturbed as little as possible."

Kight's Funeral Home Will Open This Weekend

New Quarters Will Be Located at 309-311 Decatur Street

A formal public opening of Kight's Funeral Home, 309-311 Decatur street, will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. each day.

The new quarters of the Kight Funeral Home are in the old Footer property, recently acquired by William H. Kight, who has been a funeral director here for nearly two decades.

Assisted by his son Byron Kight, the funeral director operates in his new establishment, complete funeral and ambulance service. The building was acquired in July and is being remodeled and remodeled into a modern funeral home.

The structure contains twenty-four rooms in all, including a large chapel, four display rooms, guest and family rooms, dressing rooms and preparation rooms. It is possible, Kight said last night, to conduct four funerals at the same time, if this should become necessary. The upper floors of the building have been remodeled into living quarters for Kight and his family.

Situated as it is on the corner of Decatur and Davidson street, there is ample parking space and adequate driveway and garage facilities in the rear. Kight maintains a fleet of modern funeral coaches, funeral cars and ambulances.

Kight came to Cumberland in July of 1925 from Elk Garden, Va., where he operated a funeral parlor for twenty years. He started in business there in 1905 and also did business in Blain, W. Va., and Kitzmiller, during that period.

From 1925 until the fall of 1938, he was associated with the late G. Stanley Butler on Columbia street. When Mr. Butler died Kight purchased his business and property and continued to conduct the enterprise at the Butler home until he acquired the present location, July 1.

Gas Defense Classes Will Be Taught in City Hall Auditorium

Gas defense classes, conducted by the Decontamination Corps, of which W. A. Gunther is head, will be held in the city hall auditorium Monday night, Aug. 31, Wednesday night, Sept. 2 and Friday night, Sept. 4 at 7:30 p. m.

Leaders of the classes urge that all members of the canteen and shelter groups of the Red Cross and the O. C. D. who have not made up their three hours of gas defense to attend these meetings which will be of one hour each.

Sponsors of the refresher courses, two of which have been completed with the third in its last stages say that additional registrations will be accepted at the two Elks homes tonight, tomorrow and Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

The final class of the third refresher course will be held Tuesday evening.

As the third class is completed and the fourth class is about to get underway, local Elks who have sponsored the refresher courses report that thirty-two men who completed the training here have already qualified for Aviation Cadet training with the United States Army. Two others have qualified for training with the United States Navy and one is now with the Royal Canadian Air Corps.

Men who complete the refresher course satisfactorily and who pass the necessary physical and mental qualifications, may then enlist as Aviation Cadets. Men who enlist and begin training receive $75 per month and a ration allowance of $1 per day. They are given a $10,000 government life insurance policy at government expense.

Fifteen men registered earlier in the week, and a similar number have made application and taken forms with them to be filled out. In some instances where men are under twenty-one years of age they took forms home to get their parents' consent.

G. William Bibby Receives Commission In Army Air Force

G. William Bibby, president of the Cumberland Brewing Company, has received a commission as a captain in the army air force and has been ordered to report for duty September 3 at Miami, Fla.

The board of directors of the company has granted Bibby leave of absence as president and a director during the period of his army service and has appointed J. H. Stutely to act as general manager during that time. Stutely is vice president and treasurer of the company.

Bibby has been an aviation enthusiast for several years, and has had flying experience at local fields.

William Mathews, Former Painting Contractor, Dies

Retired from Business in 1937; Well-known in Fraternal Circles

Funeral services will be held today for William Thomas Mathews, 73, for more than half a century one of Cumberland's leading painting contractors, who died at 3 o'clock Saturday morning at his home, 500 Baltimore avenue. He retired from business in 1937 and had been in failing health for several years.

Mr. Mathews, a native of Cumberland, was prominent in fraternal and sporting activities here and was particularly interested in baseball. He owned a hunting lodge on Polish mountain that was a favorite refuge for his many friends.

Fraternally, Mr. Mathews was a member of Potomac Lodge, No. 100, A. F. and A. Masons, Salem chapter, No. 18, Royal Arch Masons, Maryland Lodge of Perfection, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, Grand Commandery of Knights Templar, and All Chas. Temple, A. O. Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Mr. Mathews was prominent in church work and was a member of St. Luke's Lutheran church. For a number of years he was superintendent of St. Luke's cemetery.

Born in Cumberland March 4, 1869, Mr. Mathews was a son of the late James and Christine Myers Mathews. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Eda C. Mathews; two sisters, Mrs. Charles H. Myers, LaVale; Mrs. Ernest Gilbert, Morgantown, W. Va.; three brothers, J. Lawrence, Joseph and Walter Mathews, all of Cumberland. Mr. Mathews was the father of the late Ralph H. Mathews, secretary for the late Congressman Fred M. Zihlman.

Funeral services will be held at the home with the Rev. H. Hall Sharp, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church, officiating. Potomac Lodge, No. 100, A. F. and A. M., will be in charge. Interment will be in Rose Hill cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Leander Schaidt, George Brown, Morris Robbinette, Harold Bloom, William Smith and Roy Kimes.

Mrs. Lee Rannels Dies In Levels, W. Va.

Mrs. Lee Watson Rannels, 79, widow of Howard Rannels, Levels, W. Va., died at her home at 10:30 o'clock Saturday night after a lingering illness. She was a lifelong resident of the Levels community.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Glenn Rhodes, Perry, Ga.; two grandchildren, Merium Rhodes and Page Rannels, Jr., Levels; and a nephew, James T. Vandegrift, Ridgeley, W. Va.

Mrs. Rannels was a member of the Methodist church.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at her late home. Interment will be in Levels cemetery.

Funeral Rites Are Held For Edward E. Dyer

Funeral services for Edward Elias Dyer, 209 Potomac street, were held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday in the Kight funeral home with the Rev. C. King Welch, pastor of Bethany United Brethren church, officiating. Interment was in Rose Hill cemetery.

During the services, Mrs. Thelma Long sang "Is My Name Written There" and "Sometime We Will Understand." She was accompanied.

Jaycees To Make Sending of Birthday Greetings to Those in Service Easy

List of Names, Together with Birthdates, To Be Published Weekly

As a reminder of the men and women in the service of their country the Cumberland Association of Commerce has compiled a list of names together with birthdates for publication each week in local newspapers.

Members of the association's Victory committee believe that many people will avail themselves of the opportunity provided by this list to send a greeting or perhaps a gift to the men in the army, navy, marine corps, or to women in the nurses corps.

In each case the home address of each individual is given as shown on records of local draft boards. Greetings can be sent to the homes of these men and women and members of their families can then forward them to their proper destination.

Members of families of men and women in service whose names might not appear on draft board records because of enlistment rather than induction should contact the junior association of commerce office in the Liberty Trust building.

Albert Humbertson is chairman of the Jaycee Victory committee, other members including Joseph Stakem, Fred D. Steidings, Hermann Neumann, C. William Gilchrist, Robert Pink, D. Clifford Goughenow, John E. Murphy, C. L. Coughenow, Rev. Alfred L. Creager, C. Eugene Howell. Those assisting in collecting and compiling names and birthdates are Mrs. John R. Wilkinson, Mrs. Thomas G. Davis, Mrs. Norman T. Smith and Mrs. Albert Humbertson.
